

ACROSS CANADA WITH MONSARRAT

EIGHT-WEEK JOURNEY
BEGINS AT ST. JOHN'S

The long journey starts tomorrow—Canada coast-to-coast—and in spite of dire prophecies of heat, dust, fatigue, boredom, and roads like old-fashioned washboards, I'm really looking forward to it.

Some of those prophecies may come true; it won't matter at all. When I was in South Africa after the war, I always planned to drive from Cape Town to Cairo—about four thousand miles of civilization, jungle, desert, and roads varying from top-grade highways to farm-tracks. I never made that journey, for a variety of reasons. When I came to Canada eighteen months ago, I was determined to drive from the east coast to the west—also about four thousand miles, of country varying from sea-shore and mountain passes to mile after mile of dusty farm-land. Now it's going to come true.

BY AIR AND ROAD

The journey I've planned will be made mostly by car; but I want to start from St. John's, Newfoundland, which I knew well during the war, and since there isn't time to take the car across from the mainland, that part will be by air. The rest will be by road, from Sydney, Cape Breton, to Victoria, British Columbia, with the middle section (Port McNicholl to Fort Williams) by lake steamship. Being a writer on leave-of-absence from an office job, I'll be writing about it as I go along.

I'm not equipped to survey Canada—like an eagle; and I don't want to flit across it like a bee. The journey will take eight weeks, and the story I hope to tell will be what one man sees when he crosses Canada from coast to coast—ten provinces, fifteen major cities, and plenty of time to play with. Most of it I've done already, on speaking tours during the past eighteen months. Now there'll be no speeches (wonderful!); just a few broadcasts, and lots of driving—which I love.

The car is a Bentley—technically, a Bentley Mark VII Continental. In case you catch sight of it on the way, it is dark grey, shaped like a Dutch cigar, and extremely photogenic. I've had it for a year, and after 13,000 miles it's just about run in. If pressed, it will go 120 mph. It will also move at a gentle walking pace, just as smoothly. You will have guessed that I love it dearly.

What else have I got? A large collection of maps, provided by the Royal Automobile Club of Canada: an itinerary

which I hope to stick to; a few old clothes, a camera, a fishing-rod, a pair of binoculars, and a lot of advice. I'll use them all. I've also got an inquisitive mind—Canada is still very new to me, and I'm looking forward tremendously to seeing it all in one piece—and a mood that can be summed up as "British Columbia or Bust!"

Tomorrow the journey starts, from St. John's, Newfoundland. I can't help be pleased about that. During the war my ship began a lot of journeys from St. John's: we were attached to a Canadian escort group, and for nearly two years we used to hole up periodically in St. John's at the finish of our west-bound convoy, sleep for five or six days, and then set out on the homeward trip.

After St. John's, I fly to Sydney, Cape Breton, where the car, the camera, and the old clothes will be waiting for me. As far as Ottawa (three weeks) I shall be alone; then my wife joins me, for the five weeks that will take us across the prairies, over the mountains, and down to the Pacific Ocean.

An obliging man with a computer (though the word of computer has added up the total mileage for me. He made it out to be $47.73—which a ready mind will translate into the formidable span of 4,773 miles.

What I'll write is still a matter of guess-work. It's almost impossible to drive 4,773 miles, and describe what you see, and the people you meet, without treading on somebody's toes in the process. (That has already happened. When I discussed the journey with a man at the club, he exclaimed, "What? You're not going to Swift Current? But I was born there!" I said I was sorry. It made matters worse.)

I hope you'll forgive me, in advance. For me, it's going to be a wonderful experience anyway.

150,000 Jam Toronto To Welcome Marilyn

(Compiled From BUP and CP Dispatches)

TORONTO—Sixteen-year-old Marilyn Bell, who said she was used to getting wet, thanked a crowd of thousands today for standing in the rain to cheer her for her swim across Lake Ontario.

The freckle-nosed high school girl rode in triumph from the Royal York Hotel to the City Hall through a crowd Mayor Leslie Saunders said was the biggest on Bay Street since the war heroes returned.

Police said more than 150,000 persons crowded along Bay Street and around city hall to see Marilyn. They said it was a bigger crowd than assembled to see Queen (then Princess) Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh during the royal tour.

Miss Bell, who won the heart of the nation last week with her unprecedented feat, said the welcome was "Wonderful, Wonderful, Wonderful."

"I want to thank all you wonderful people for coming out on such a wet day and getting soaked," she said. "I'm used to it, but I didn't expect so many people."

As the procession came up Bay Street, the police lost control of the crowd. Fans jammed themselves up against the cars and gave the motor cavalcade the appearance of running through a mass of humanity. As Marilyn's car passed, fans fell in step behind, covering the street, almost solidly with a roof of umbrellas.

Tickler tape billowed from the windows and rooftops and other paper of all colors and sizes floated down through the drizzle.

Marilyn smiled and posed for photographers before and after the presentation in a powder blue raincoat and illusion heel red shoes. Her classmates presented her with a lei of pink, white and mauve chrysanthemums which she wore around her neck and she carried a bouquet of gladiolas.

Marilyn's swimming coach, Gus Ryder, was cheered as he said he "appreciated the faith the people of Toronto had in Canadian youth as being," in my estimation, the best in the world."

P.M.'S CONGRATULATIONS
At the climax, Mayor Leslie Saunders gave Marilyn a gold Maple Leaf set with a large diamond and engraved with the city's congratulations as well as a set of matched luggage.

The student body of Marilyn's school, Loretto College, was at the city hall steps for the ceremony.

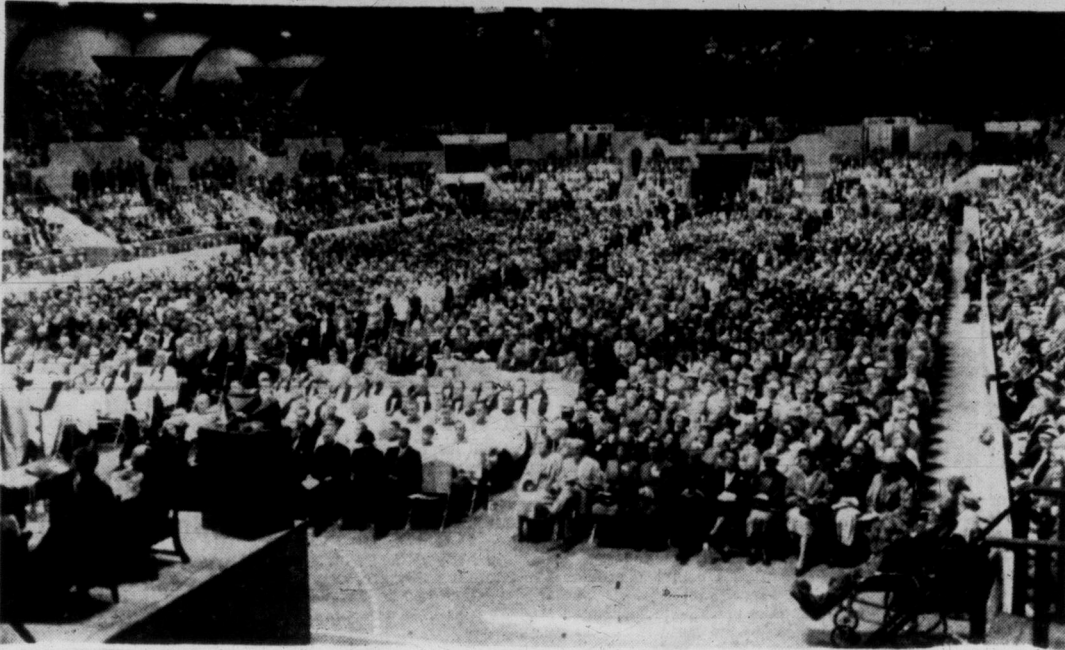

Among the hundreds of telegrams of congratulations still pouring in on Marilyn was one from Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent. He wired:

"Please accept my most hearty congratulations for your splendid achievements. Your fellow Canadians are very proud of you for your great swim."

Gifts worth at least $60,000 kept pouring in, and it was estimated the little blonde with the big smile could make $100,000 by personal appearances and endorsing products.

Marilyn flew to Montreal, Saturday night and made a brief personal appearance at a Shrine's convention in the Montreal Forum.

Record Throng Packs Arena To Hear Primate's Address

Arena Capacity Taxed for First Time

Arena was packed long before Archbishop of Canterbury service started at 7:30 p.m.—It was biggest crowd ever to assemble there. People started pouring in shortly after 6 p.m. and approximately 8,000 were seated when impressive service started. Several fainted due to heat and strain. Visiting clergy are

7th Fleet Can Handle Formosa Drive—Dulles

DENVER (UP)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, meeting here with President Eisenhower and the National Security Council, said he sensed no threat of an immediate Red Chinese invasion of either Formosa or Quemoy Island.

Furthermore, Dulles said, the American Seventh Fleet could handle any "possible" Red effort to overrun Formosa, the seat of the Chinese Nationalist government, from the mainland.

As to what the United States would do if the Reds attacked Quemoy, a few miles off the China mainland, Dulles said that would be a matter first for the military. Its recommendations would go to the executive branch, which, however, would not be bound by them.

TAIPEI, Formosa (UP)—Chinese Nationalist spokesman Gen. Chang Yi-Ting said today heavy Nationalist attacks on the Communist-held Amoy area may have delayed a Red attempt to invade Quemoy Island.

Nationalist warplanes bombed Amoy and the nearby coastline today.

Chang said quick Nationalist air, sea and artillery retaliation "may have delayed" Red invasion plans.

He said the reported concentration of 220,000 Communist troops in the Amoy area posed a threat to Quemoy. He added, however, that the present Red building is not sufficient to indicate a plan to attack Formosa.

5 Canadians Survive
WESTOVER AIR FORCE BASE, Mass. (AP)—The five survivors of Sunday's crash in Greenland of a C-124 globe-master are Canadian civilians, the U.S. military air transport service here announced today.

It did not give their names. Ten persons—including the crew of eight and two passengers—were killed when the plane crashed near Thule air force base in Greenland. The five survivors were passengers.

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada will announce officially Tuesday that it will withdraw two-thirds of its infantry brigade in Korea before Christmas, it was learned today.

WIRE, CABLE FIRMS FACE COMBINE TRIAL

BONN (UP)—British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer today announced "complete agreement" on plans to restore German sovereignty and rearmed West Germany. It was understood the plan for obtaining a German contribution to the defense of the free world involved German membership in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO).

Marlene Wins Easily

SEWICKLEY, Pa. (AP)—Canadian champion Marlene Stewart of Fonthill, Ont., survived a seven-over-par 43 on the front nine to win an easy 6-and-5 victory over Mrs. James Murray of Pittsburgh today in the first round of the United States women's amateur golf championships.

Hurricane Rips Maritimes; $7 Million Loss

Annapolis Apple Crop, Fishing Industry Hardest Hit; Single Death Reported

HALIFAX (CP)—Hurricane Edna, vandal and killer, left a multi-million-dollar swath of twisted trees, ruined crops, wrecked buildings and death as she howled across the Maritimes with 100-mile-an-hour gusts.

Total damage for Nova Scotia and New Brunswick was estimated at $7,000,000.

Miraculously, only one man died in the big storm Saturday. William Jefferson, a Lake Centre, N.S., farmer, was crushed when his barn fell in on him at the storm's peak.

The only serious injury reported was in New Brunswick. J. Mahoney of the Caledonia district was taken to hospital in Fredericton after his car plunged into a washout.

An untold number of livestock died in wind-smashed barns. Four of Charlie Clerk's cows met a typical end in Kentville. Their backs were broken as the hurricane tore their barn from its foundations. They had to be shot.

Yarmouth on Nova Scotia's southernmost tip took the first brunt of the storm. As fallen power lines crackled in the darkened streets a state of emergency was declared and people ordered indoors. A nearby summer resort hotel suffered $25,000 worth of damage.

FISHERMEN SUFFER

Near Yarmouth at Kelley's Cove, waves washed over a 25-foot breakwater and swept $100,000 worth of herring fishing equipment and lobster pots into the sea. A fish plant was ripped from concrete foundations and carried 15 feet in one $15,000 gust. Eight thousand pounds of live lobsters were crushed in their crates.

At Wedgeport, the world's tuna fishing capital about 40 miles from Yarmouth, tuna guides stayed by the waterfront as the mountainous waves did $40,000 damage to fishing gear.

Apple growers in the Annapolis Valley woke to find their 2,500,000-bushel crop of the day before scattered over their orchards like spilled peas. They figured their loss would run to at least $3,000,000.

The numerous minor fires were blamed on the storm.

In Pictou, the wind pried a large chunk off a new freight shed, carried it over two piers and deposited it on the deck of a Danish schooner; a 75-year-old church steeple was snapped off; a dory was scooped off the deck of a scow, carried over two houses and dropped in a vacant lot.

Worst hit part of New Brunswick was Grand Manan Island in the Bay of Fundy. Frothing, house-high waves crashed into the shore and carried a fishing boat out to sea. No one was aboard. Weirs were destroyed, lobster pots and breakwaters battered. Damage was at least $250,000.

'Commandments Not Enough' Archbishop of Canterbury Tells Crowd of 8,000

By TONY DICKASON

Nearly 8,000 people jammed the Memorial Arena last night—largest group ever to assemble there—to hear the Archbishop of Canterbury, Most Rev. Geoffrey Fisher, give a fact-packed and spiritually illuminating address which drew appreciative and studied attention from assembled thousands.

Against background of colorfully supplied massed choirs, His Grace shed his Coronation mitre and robe before facing the audience which consisted of members of all local Anglican parishes and visitors from the mainland and northwest states.

Only a few could not gain admission. Additional chairs were brought into the arena which topped normal capacity from 5,400 to nearly 8,000. Front row of listeners were sitting almost at His Grace's feet.

In his stirring address, given with his spectacles at times shoved high on his forehead,

$225 CROSSWORD PAGE 17

His Grace said the Ten Commandments of the Bible are "not enough for the complicated community which is modern society. The Commandments were adequate for a 'primitive' society but alone were not enough to solve today's moral problems.

He advocated that the present-day seeker after truth and spiritual insight study the Sermon on the Mount.

Modern Society Sets Up 'Soft' God

Modern society, he said, had created a "sentimental God," based on individual emotions. Such a conception by those who believed this way presupposed a God "as soft as themselves."

He called the welfare state an "admirable institution—and it all perishes from the lack of people who have not the love of Christ in their hearts."

The arena started to fill about 6 p.m., an hour-and-a-half before the service was scheduled to start. Choir—500 strong from Island parishes—and approximately 70 clergy vested in the HBC, then went in procession down Douglas Street, up Balmoral Street and down Balmoral Street to the arena. So numerous were white, black and rose surpliced chorists it took nearly a half-hour before they were seated in the north end of the arena.

Choirmaster and organist of Christ Church Cathedral, Graham Steed, conducted the massed voices while assistant organist Miss Ann Van der Voort accompanied on the Hammond organ.

Among distinguished guests present were Attorney General Robert Bonner, Labor Minister Lyle Wicks, Health Minister Eric Martin and Victoria's Mayor Claude Harrison.

The glory of the British Commonwealth today, the Primate said, was not that members had sprung from one stock only, but from many stocks.

Religious differences within the Commonwealth he termed "pitiful," but added that in each belief there was "some precious truth. Yet it is a weakness we should be so divided."

However, if organic unity were achieved, the Archbishop said "some type of tyranny" might follow. Nonetheless he said that Christ willed that His people should be as one. "To be divided, even by truth, offends Him."

But different sects would have no reason for existing unless they had "something to be proud of," he said.

Pressures on the modern man were designed to rob him of his

Socialists Deal Adenauer Body Blow

KIEL, Germany (UP)—Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's Christian Democratic (CDU) party lost ground sharply in its first election test since France's rejection of the European army plan, final returns showed today.

The CDU vote in the Schleswig-Holstein state election Sunday was more than one-third less than the 47.1 per cent it polled here in last year's national elections, although the party lost only one seat in the state legislature.

The opposition Socialists picked up five seats—enough to damage Adenauer's reputation considerably.

B.C. Gives Garnets For Primatial Cross

2 Victoria Daily Times
MONDAY, SEPT. 13, 1954

JUST for the RECORD

SHIPWRECK: A small-boat skipper has learned that the perils of the sea are nothing compared to those of Los Angeles traffic.

W. F. Yeomans was towing his home-made 28-foot cabin cruiser to the harbor for her maiden cruise Saturday when his car collided with another. The cruiser slid off a trailer and the hull and rudder were damaged.

CHESS: In Vicenza, Italy, princely descendants of the once-warring barons of north-east Italy put on 15th-century dress Sunday to re-enact the chess match with living pieces by which Vicenza's governor 500 years ago decided which of two rival princes should marry his daughter.

The living chess game was performed before the castle of the Della Scala family, which once ruled over the cities of Verona, Treviso, Padua, Mantua and Ferrara, as well as Vicenza.

More than 200 persons in Italy medieval dress took part in the colorful contest.

THE TOOLS: The University of Wisconsin plans to offer a ne wtelevision course for adults who want to learn to play the piano.

All the student needs is a TV set and a piano.

THE BIG HEAT: In Du-bok, Pa., James Rice, 33, of Charlestown, Mass., picked on the wrong auto yesterday to go joy riding.

When he tried to start the car it burst into flames. While Rice pondered the situation a police cruiser drove by and arrested Rice for attempted auto theft.

RECKLESS: When safe-crackers couldn't open the strong box at the Columbia Farms Dairy (New York) last night they stole an auto and hauled it away.

A few minutes later police received a telephone call from a woman who wanted to report a reckless driver who nearly ran her down and didn't bother to stop when he hit a bump and an unopened safe fell out of the car's trunk.

Premier Presents Province's Gift After Historic Service at Cathedral

Six semi-precious garnet stones were presented Archbishop of Canterbury Geoffrey Fisher Sunday in the vestry of Christ Church Cathedral by Premier W. A. C. Bennett immediately following the morning service at which His Grace addressed approximately 1,700 persons.

Said Premier Bennett: "I speak for the government and the people of B.C. . . please accept this small gift."

The stones will go into the primatial cross, carried before the Archbishop on ceremonial occasions. The cross, made towards the end of the last century, carries other types of stones from Commonwealth nations, including sapphires from Australia.

The idea for the presentation, made in the vestry before clergy and choir members divested, originated with Most Rev. H. E. Sexton, Archbishop of British Columbia. He had

Overflow Crowd Listened Outside

The Cathedral itself was jammed for the Archbishop's address. As well, a public address system carried his words to people on the cathedral grounds. The archbishop, caught in the pulpit by sunlight streaming through the windows of the vaulted edifice, called Christ Church "a great cathedral" in opening remarks.

Most potent factor in shaping the inheritance in the British Commonwealth "has been our Christian faith, with God as our hope and strength," he said.

Prior to the pulpit sermon His Grace dedicated the northwest tower and window in memory of the late Bishop Winnington-Ingram of London, to whose see he succeeded.

Uncontrolled social change, he said—without specifically mentioning communism—"could destroy the virtues of the people, the saving truths of a great tradition for which the Commonwealth stands, and the Christian religion itself."

His text was from St. Peter: "The end of all things is at hand." These he termed "words of crisis," pointing out that totalitarian governments eradicate the past completely and endeavor to substitute a new faith.

"By contrast, we treasure the past and what it means to us," he called the Communist policy "immorality."

'Faith Gives Man Stability'

Much needed stability in the world today in the face of fast changes should be "derived from faith," he said. When man builds progress in a mechanical sense, he also inherits subsequent evils. Thus there was a need for continuity of tradition and an adaption and increase of spiritual outlooks.

The Archbishop saw the core of the needed continuity springing from the Church of England, "the voice of God through the centuries." The church, he said, was "catholic, scriptural and always reforming ourselves."

One of the main appeals of the church, to physical sense, was the "restrain, simplicity and beauty" of services. Tied in with this was church music which His Grace called the "language of God, often more powerful than the spoken word."

The Archbishop's address was not long, but extremely direct and personal in message. He spoke feelingly of Bishop Winnington-Ingram as a man who led a "saintly life . . . he exuded the love of God in the years of his ministry. It moves me more than I can say to dedicate this window and tower to his memory."

Church discipline, he said, was essential to the spiritual life. "You can't stroll in at the last minute and be the top of your form."

St. Peter's message, as explained by the Archbishop, was simple and thorough. "St. Peter said to be sensible, to keep your heads, go to your prayers and do your work well, so that in all things God may be glorified."

If this progression was not followed, people became "Devil's tools."

This was the crux: To prefer the petty and trivial and selfish behavior to the "sensible," based on an active working belief in God.

BIG FAMILY

Tennyson, the great English poet who died in 1892, was one of 12 brothers and sisters.

GIFT FROM PEOPLE OF B.C. of six garnet stones was made Sunday in Christ Church Cathedral vestry after morning service by Premier Bennett to Archbishop of Canterbury Geoffrey Fisher. Stones will be placed in primatial cross, carried before His Grace on ceremonial occasions. Cross contains other jewels from Commonwealth nations. (Times Photo by Strickland.)

Hospital Censured Over Boy's Death

CLOVERDALE, B.C. (BUP)—A coroner's jury censured the Langley Memorial Hospital in the death of eight-year-old Allan E. Derryman from injuries suffered in a traffic mishap July 12.

The jury ruled Saturday that the boy's death "might have been avoided if more prompt and adequate surgical attention had been given."

Evidence was given at the inquest that the boy was not taken to surgery until about five hours after he was admitted to the hospital.

The boy's death was attributed to internal bleeding and shock.

MANY FAINT IN CROWD AT ARENA SERVICE

A dozen persons either fainted or had to be assisted outside at the two services Sunday held by Archbishop Geoffrey Fisher in Christ Church Cathedral and the Memorial Arena.

St. John Ambulance personnel attended to 10 persons in the arena, including three women in the massed choir, and two at the morning cathedral service.

Eight trained St. John Ambulance first-aiders were stationed at the arena and four at the cathedral.

Casualties in the arena were heavy because of the large crowd—about 7,500 persons packed all available space—and the heat. Programs fanned back and forth like countless birds as people sought to keep cool.

Train Kills Vancouver Man

Victim Struck Crossing Trestle; Man Drowns Near Kitsilano Beach

VANCOUVER (BUP)—An unidentified man was instantly killed by a train and another was believed drowned during the week-end in the Vancouver area.

Royal Canadian Mounted Police in Burnaby said the 65-year-old man was killed when struck by a freight train while crossing a bridge. Workers labored more than two hours to free his body from under the wheels of the train. He was struck less than 200 yards from the end of the trestle.

LOST FROM BOAT

Aircraft will be used in the search today for the body of Douglas Charlesworth, 22, of Vancouver, who disappeared in a friend's boat Sunday.

The boat was found floating near Kitsilano Beach. Ian Wolstenroft, 21, co-owner of the boat, said Charlesworth dropped him at the wharf and went back to deep water to moor the craft.

In another mishap during the week-end, James W. Harvey of Vancouver was charged with impaired driving after his car was struck by a train. Both Harvey and a woman companion had a miraculous escape from death, police said.

11 DEAD

TORONTO (CP)—Eleven persons were killed in eastern Canada during the week-end. Seven lost their lives in traffic mishaps.

The list of violent deaths also included a boy who fell 100 feet from the edge of a cliff and a man who dropped three stories to a concrete pavement; a far-half devoured by vultures, lay exposed among the nightmare jumble of rocks. Most of the victims were buried beneath.

NEW DANGER

As of Saturday night, 1,287 bodies had been pulled out of the ruins of Orleansville and other towns and villages in the Chelif River valley.

With the discovery of the bodies at Beni-Rached, the toll mounted to 1,294, and the tragic enumeration was not over.

A new danger now threatened Orleansville and the surrounding region—disease. Not only were human bodies still trapped five days after the disaster, but the carcasses of hundreds of goats, cows, sheep and other domestic animals littered the countryside.

Many dead animals were lying in streams or had fallen into wells and springs. Triple doses of disinfectants were put into every water supply, but putrefaction in the terrific heat still might cause epidemics of contagious diseases.

The earth was still at last. No tremors were felt since a tremor at 11 a.m. Sunday.

St. Laurent's Speech Attacked By Quebec Minister as Dangerous

MONTMAGNY, Que. (BUP)—The federal government, which has indicated it is moving towards a showdown with Premier Maurice Duplessis of Quebec, was under notice today that it could expect a stiff political battle from the provincial administration.

Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent opened the battle last Thursday in Montreal by charging that the Quebec government was opposed to national development because it would mean increased influence for the federal government.

Quebec Solicitor General Antoine Rivard answered the attack Saturday night at a banquet at his honor here. Mr. St. Laurent's speech "revealed a centralizing spirit which is particularly dangerous," Rivard said.

The prime minister told a luncheon meeting last Thursday that in his recent world tour he "found it realized everywhere that Canada's influence in world affairs was benefiting free men all over the world."

"Only in two places was Canada's growth and development not satisfying—one was behind the iron curtain... the other was the province of Quebec which is not showing any enthusiasm because the growth and development of Canada means increasing influence of the federal government."

Rivard, in a point-by-point reply, said:

"The Canadian prime minister probably knows what Russia thinks from his Canadian ambassador at Moscow but we would have preferred that he know the opinion of a Canadian ambassador to the Vatican."

Vultures Lead Party To 'Quake Victims'

307 Bodies Discovered in Algerian Village Wiped Out by Shock; Death Toll at 1,600

ORLEANSVILLE, Algeria (UP)—Search parties directed by a U.S. Air Force helicopter found 307 bodies today in a mountain village that was wiped out by last Thursday's earthquake.

Discovery of the bodies raised the death toll in North Africa's worst earthquake to almost 1,600.

Vultures flying above the town of Beni-Rached, 15 miles from ruined Orleansville, aroused the curiosity of the helicopter crew. It landed on the only flat spot left in the town.

The crew found that every person in the village was killed, including the tribal chiefs who could have reported the disaster to French authorities.

Many inhabitants who were not killed outright died slowly and horribly in the broiling sun without anyone knowing of their fate until the helicopter whirled into the village.

Only a few swollen bodies,

Butter Glut Worrisome To Farmers

OTTAWA (CP)—J. J. Creighton, president of the National Dairy Council, said today the government's butter price-support program may crack under the impact of rising surpluses unless an "adequate" excise tax is imposed on competing margarine.

Opening the council's three-day annual meeting, he estimated that Canada's butter stocks September 1 stood at an all-time high of more than 100,000,000 pounds.

And, he added, unless the government takes action to stimulate sales at home or sells surpluses abroad at below cost, it will enter the new butter-producing season next spring with an unsold stock of at least 50,000,000 pounds—almost triple the surpluses of previous years.

A spokesman for organized dairy farmers said they will resist by every means possible any attempt to reduce the government's support price on butter.

Gordon Loveridge, vice-president of the Dairy Farmers of Canada, told the council that there are demands for some in the dairy as well as in other Canadian groups for a reduction in the floor price fixed at 58 cents a pound wholesale.

"These are fighting words to a producer and it is like waving a red flag to a bull," the Grenfell, Sask., farmer said.

Woman Injured In Week-End Crash

Greater Victoria recorded its lightest week-end of traffic troubles in months with only one victim taken to hospital since early Saturday.

Mrs. Z. Florczak, 453 Burnside East, was returned to her home after treatment to three fractured ribs. She was a passenger in a car driven by her husband which was in a collision at the Fountain Roundabout at about 11 p.m. Saturday.

Driver of the other car was Donald Hillje, 1192 Fort, police said. Damage to both cars was heavy.

The Man Who Pays Twice

THE NEW TAX LAW RECENTLY passed by United States Congress contains a little-noted but vital principle which other countries could wisely imitate. In a marginal fashion the evil of double and discriminatory taxation is being repealed.

By double taxation the United States, Canada and most nations tax the bond holder once and the stock holder twice. This is accomplished by the corporation tax which is levied on the profits of all companies, at the approximate rate of fifty per cent in Canada. Thus half the stock holder's profits are taken by the state before they can be distributed as dividends or re-invested in business. Then, when the remaining profits reach the stock holder as dividends, they are taxed again, under the personal income tax. The bond holder, on the other hand, pays only one tax on his personal income when he receives all his interest.

There never has been any excuse in equity for this discrimination. Double taxation is enforced because it is regarded as good politics and an easy source of revenue.

Governments everywhere pretend that corporations are some kind of abstract concept, inhuman, rich and the proper target of the tax collector. In fact, they are owned by the stock holders and the stock holders are more numerous and more widely distributed than is generally supposed.

Every man who owns a life insurance policy, for example, is a stock holder whether he knows it or not, because his insurance company invests heavily in stocks. He therefore is the victim of double taxation like every direct stock holder. Millions of Canadians are paying two taxes while others, holding bonds or fixed investments of any sort, pay one tax.

The new American law only begins to attack this evil by allowing the stock holder to deduct a small part of his dividends from his income, for personal income tax purposes. He still pays double taxes on most of his dividends. But at least a beginning has been made, and not without serious political difficulty for the Eisenhower Government.

It is criticized for catering to the rich at the expense of the poor, as if all stock was held by a few rich men. It replies, quite rightly, that many Americans of small means hold stocks, directly or through life insurance, and it argues that in a free enterprise economy the holding of stocks should be encouraged.

The Congress, in the sensitive atmosphere of an election year, was not prepared to go as far as the President desired. It granted only a fraction of the justice due to the stock holder—solely because business is popularly supposed to belong to a few millionaires who can well afford to pay through the nose. In fact, business pays its taxes, as far as possible, by handing them on to the consumer in the form of prices. The remainder is paid at the cost of the stock holders, who are thus discouraged from investing in enterprise.

It is to be hoped that the small start made by the Congress in the new law will be expanded later on and that the Canadian Parliament will have the courage to tackle the present injustice. The state needs huge revenues these days and must get them where the money is, but it should treat all men alike. This it can do through the personal income or other taxes. If a man has a large income from stock investment he should pay correspondingly large income taxes but he should not pay twice while others pay once.

UBC and Capital Development

VISITORS TO THE UNIVERSITY of British Columbia have their attention drawn to what Vancouver natives call "exciting" architecture as they pass a modernistic church shortly after driving through the gates of University Avenue.

As they proceed into the older section of the area, they come across a number of more traditional buildings, and scattered behind them are the "shacks," temporary accommodation thrown into the region to relieve the terrific growing pains of the University during the immediate post-war years.

There is little "old ivy" about U.B.C. It hasn't lived long enough yet. But there is an atmosphere of vitality, the pioneering spirit which houses important instructional and administrative centres in converted army structures, and an air of seriousness which tackles a big job with the facilities at hand—and those facilities, apart from certain buildings, are good.

This is the background against which Dr. Norman A. M. MacKenzie, president, has made the statement that "considerable sums for capital development must be made available to the university in the near future." That is understatement. "Considerable sums for capital development" are quite obviously required now.

The need will increase, of course, as the University grows in size, takes in swelling student bodies and enlarges its faculties to meet the demands of the times. By 1961, when the post-war crop of babies will be arriving at University age, student attendance is expected to reach the formidable total of 10,000.

The product of the U.B.C. merits support. As the President notes, the range of studies currently being carried on is "encouraging and steadily increasing the university's reputation for scholarship and research."

The physical deficiencies of the institution emphasize the need for more adequate accommodation, more permanent architecture—architecture which will be "exciting" not so much in design as in providing space and adequate conditions to continue and expand the magnificent work which is undertaken there.

When the Oak Tree Lowers the Boom

LAST YEAR VICTORIANS WERE treated to one of those comic opera sequences that arise from official investigation of trees in Beacon Hill Park. At the time, the parks superintendent recommended the removal of certain old oaks which he considered a danger to the public. No one could tell, he said, when one of the aged, heavy limbs would fall. Opposing opinion was expressed when the mayor brought his own tree expert onto the scene and the arboreal deep surgery was vetoed.

Last week a limb from one of the trees crashed down, piercing the roof of the children's recreation shelter. No one was injured. But the incident did support the argument that such huge branches could fall at any time and when they fell someone might be hurt.

A Change in Sentiment

PRAVDA'S HEAVY ATTACK ON Mr. Attlee, so recently the honored guest of Russia, was not unexpected. While there was hope that the British Opposition Leader's visit behind the Iron Curtain might lead to dissension between the Anglo-American allies, weaken the unity of the West and cause consternation among the British voters, the communists were content to be silent.

But when it quickly appeared that their visitor had not been misled by "eyewash," when Mao Tse-tung's request that Mr. Attlee try to deter United States re-armament was met with a similar request that the Chinese leader try to dissuade Russia from war preparations, it became evident that the British Socialist's tour was not going to result in any furthering of Soviet plans. Particularly was this so when Mr.

Most Victorians want to save their trees. That is a community convention generally respected. At the same time, the condition of some of them call for a little common sense action. There should be no cutting just for the sake of cutting, but if removal of some growth is recommended by people who should be in a position to judge its condition of decay, anyone who vetoes such recommendations automatically assumes a particular responsibility.

That responsibility appears now to rest on the mayor and his supporters. Is it good enough for them to point out that no one was hurt by the limb which fell last week? Or should better-informed men be given the opportunity to exercise their judgment on tree removals?

Attlee's reports of his journey began to appear in the Western press. The Kremlin's reaction was immediate. By a violent attack in its journalistic mouthpiece it sought to denigrate the British statesman. It viewed his frank comments as slander, declared that he was no friend of the Soviet Union and Communist China, and described their recent guest as a "rampant adherent of arming Western Germany."

Forgotten were the earlier jovial toasts, the pleasant chats over the teacups, the disarming references to welcome visitors. The Briton had showed himself no party to Soviet propaganda, hence, for domestic and foreign consumption, he must be reviled and damned. Ironically enough, it needed only such sentiments from the Kremlin to increase Mr. Attlee's popularity at home.

They Laughed When He Sat Down to Play

Chips

By DAVID BROCK

WELL, cullies, this is National Newspaper Cuttings Week, and I am glad to have seen the following clippings, sent to me by readers. Here is one from a Toronto book review:

"This book is a naive tale of the consequences of adultery of a sort popular 50 years ago, and may be still so with less discriminating readers." I am sorry to say I hadn't realized there were fashions in adultery. I wonder what sort the discriminating are favoring just now?

And here are some personal advertisements from the Times of London:

"Young barrister, hampered by public school background, two degrees, and good taste, seeks position in industry or commerce where such qualifications will be politely eschewed."

"Biographer of BSM Brittain, MBE (man with loudest voice in army) would welcome anecdotes from others who have served with him."

"Lost at Miss Susan Clark's ball at Hutchinson House on July 8, a small striped rubber horse called Matthew. Will finder return it to 33 Thurlow Square, S.W.7."

I THINK the owner of the striped rubber horse is trying to be cute (if he is not writing in code). And I suspect the young barrister is trying to be smart, and I don't think he quite knows what eschew means. But I have every sympathy for the Oxford graduate and ex-fighter who advertises that he "lacks business acumen, technical knowledge, and both the power and the inclination to make anyone buy or sell."

The same reader who sent me those Times Personals has very kindly supplied me with an account of something that took place while he was traveling from here to Britain in a Scottish freighter. Only two of the whole ship's company were non-Scots. Most of the company were from the Western Isles, with their own brand of humor. An apprentice was sticking his head out of a cabin port-hole, and the First Officer happened along and said to him "Here, take in yer head. People will think it's a cattle ship."

THIS reminded me considerably of the sailors in the drawings of Charles Graves of Punch (Grave, not Graves). He understood the mind of the sailor, and I fancy most of his jokes as well as his models were based on life. If not dictated word for word by life, the exasperated bosun saying to a rating "If yer brains was dynamite, they wouldn't blow yer blinkin' 'at off." The quartermaster telling a detective "The only thing I can recollect about the man is that 'is ears was stepped well aft." The bosun telling an officer about the man who split tar on the deck "And when I seen wot 'e done, I says to 'im 'Good Lord, wot 'as you done?'"

IF I tried hard, I think I could remember 60 or 70 drawings by Charles Graves. I don't think I could remember five by the more famous and respectable comic artists of recent years. Does this prove anything beyond the fact that my memory has gaps in it and that I like sailors? Oh yes, I think so.

LET THERE BE LIGHT

SOMEONE has sent me a quotation attributed to the late Lord Lloyd (NOT Lloyd George!) Apropos of some wildcat British theoretical scheme, he said "Unenlightened instruction, coming from unenlightened sentimentalism."

How applicable this is to some of our North American thinking (if that is the word) about Progress and about Change as a self-evident blessing.

And speaking of the blessings of mere change, C. S. Lewis in The Screwtape Letters says "Once men know that some changes were for the better, and others for the worse, and others again indifferent. We have largely removed this knowledge. For the descriptive 'unchanged' we have substituted the emotional adjective 'stagnant.' We have trained them to think of the Future as a promised land which favored heroes attain... not as something which everyone reaches at the rate of sixty minutes an hour; whatever he does, wherever he is."

TO THE HELIPORT WITH YOU

ALL the newspapers are now calling a patch of ground or a flat roof a "heliport," if helicopters are allowed to land on it. I suppose the word will stick. If it does, I will be heartily sorry. I am sick of half-words being used to mean the whole word... as in "burger," to mean a bun sandwich when all it could really mean is a townsman; or "matric" to mean any expensive and complicated device that partly runs itself. The other day I read about a bicycle described as cyclo-sonic, which could only mean that it went round noisily, but the man who cooked up that word (and cooked it to death) imagined that sonic had something to do with speed. I suppose. A heliport would be a spiral gate or a spiral harbor... if you bared to mix Greek and Latin. Or it could name something to do with helix, the small perhaps a nice port wine with snail in it.

OH yes, I know we have done this with words all along. The word "mob," for example, should be meaningless, in theory, since it is only the first of five syllables, yet it is very useful. All the same, I am leery about encouraging the wholesale and drunken dismemberment of words, on the off-chance that some of the by-products of this slaughterhouse may come in handy as a kind of verbal cat-food.

From Our Files

Sept. 13, 1894 — Supt. McCready of the Victoria Electric Co. returned from Port Townsend last evening. While there he purchased from the General Electric Co. three cars formerly used in Port Townsend. They are nearly new.

Sept. 13, 1914 — The U.S. revenue cutter Bear has arrived at Nome, Alaska, with 11 survivors of the crew of the Stefanson Arctic exploration ship Karluk, rescued from Wrangel Island. The vessel sailed from Esquimaux.

Sept. 13, 1934 — Although rain fell practically all yesterday afternoon, it did not deter thousands from spending Citizens' Day at Victoria's fair. Street cars and roads leading to the grounds were jammed.

SALES TAX "SOP"

Who is trying to practice evasion on whom?

In Saturday's Times (September 4), in the report of Stephen Scott of The Canadian Press on evasion of the provincial sales tax, there appeared the statement: "To protect the province's industries, the law says that any article that is taxable within British Columbia must be taxed if it is bought elsewhere and brought in, unless it is for resale."

As I understand it from earlier public announcements, British Columbia's sales tax was purely and solely a revenue-producing impost and had nothing to do with protective tariffs. When it was first introduced in July 1948 as a three per cent levy, its avowed purpose was for social-security and municipal aid. In April of this year, when the tax was boosted to five per cent, the increase was purportedly to cover hospital insurance costs; at least, this was the claim of the provincial government in all its pronouncements on the abolition of hospital insurance premiums.

Now comes the official assertion that a prime purpose of the sales tax is "to protect the province's industries." What sort of double-talk is this?

It would seem the Scott report is a thinly-veiled rehash of a governmental propaganda handout, issued perhaps so that the sop of protectionism could be used in an attempt to excuse partially an obviously unpopular tax.

SPEED, DANGER AND NOISE

I would like to draw to your attention the necessity of some control of what has come to be a menace and a nuisance. I refer to the increasing use of high-powered speedboats on our smaller lakes.

The example I have in view is Shawnigan Lake where the number of these boats has markedly increased in the last two or three years. During the summer months, especially at weekends, they dash about in these narrow waters at speeds up to 40 miles per hour very often with minors in control, and constitute a hazard to people in small boats and canoes—besides raising an incessant din and disturbing the peace and quietness of this beautiful spot.

I do not know of any law or regulation controlling speed on water, but I feel that some means of control should be inaugurated either by the authorities, or the people concerned. Perhaps the fishing would improve if this noise and water agitation were mitigated and give the young fish that our government has yearly added to the lake a chance to grow and develop in peace.

I do not wish to be a kill-joy but I feel that for the benefit of all concerned something should be done to offset set what appears to be a lack of consideration and courtesy on the part of a few.

C. P. L. PEARSON.

FAIR AND HUMANE

I have read, with interest, that owing to the supposed increase in juvenile delinquency, that it has been suggested that our magistrate, Mr. H. C. Hall, resign from office.

This is rather a peculiar situation, as juvenile delinquency stems from improper home training and cannot in the main be remedied by punishment. It has been my privilege to attend police courts in London and Hamilton, Ont.; Winnipeg, Edmonton, Vancouver and Victoria, and I say without hesitation that Magistrate Hall is one of the fairest and most humane magistrates I have been associated with. It is a pleasure to be of assistance, however small, to him in his sometimes very thankless task.

In my opinion we are extremely fortunate in having Mr. Hall for our magistrate in Victoria.

BEAUTY AND PRAISE

In my previous letter I tried to rouse or stimulate interest in beauty, which I believe is the greatest thing in the world. Among other things I said a true beauty lover was also a true Christian, as they were inseparable.

However, judging by the response, true beauty lovers or live Christians are about as scarce as hens' teeth. In fact, I haven't seen one yet.

Just how these lukewarm Christians that have so little love for beauty here can expect to enjoy heaven—which the Bible tells us is the very essence of beauty—is hard to understand unless they acquire or develop a much greater love for beauty than they have now.

I believe St. Paul had this thought in mind in his letter to the Philippians when he said: "Finally, brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things."

Of course Paul didn't mean just to think about these things only. He meant action as well.

Some people think they are showing appreciation when they say to themselves or someone else such and such a person deserves credit for what he or she is doing. Yet the only credit or praise they are giving is the kind that is never heard by the person to whom the credit is due. This kind of praise is like faith without works. It is dead because it is of no value to anyone.

Calgary Herald

WE think the time is ripe to start an association to save humanity from the attentions of psychiatrists—well, some kinds of psychiatrists, anyway: the kind so aptly referred to by Sir Alan Herbert as trick-cyclists. The capacity of these gentlemen to make everything complicated, and to reduce everything to utter confusion, is unsurpassed. They touch nothing that they do not render unintelligible.

We will not here deal with their peculiar brand of double-talk—which has been adopted, with a few improvements, by the progressive educators and others; that would fill a whole volume in itself. But it is only recently that a whole bevy of trick-cyclists meeting in convention somewhere, announced that it was probably all right for parents to bring up their children in the way that seemed fit to them, the parents. Since this is in direct contradiction to everything the trick-cyclists have been saying for about forty years (during which time they have been warning all and sundry of the dire consequences which must ensue if parents did not abandon their ancient and barbaric habits), they must forgive us if we wonder what the official line will be next year.

Now, we notice, another bevy of the same people have announced to a breathless world that we all start going downhill after the age of twenty-four. "People," according to them, "seem to reach a peak of maturity about twenty-four and then begin to decline in intellectual capacity and in personality." This judgment was rendered, apparently, on the basis of tests given to "several thousand" men. And the less schooling the man has, the faster he goes down after twenty-four.

All we have to go on is a short report that came in over the wires. We have no doubt that these pearls of wisdom were originally wrapped up in a few thousand well-chosen words, none of which ran to fewer than eight syllables. But assuming that the news-agency reporter has got it right, we will venture the wholly inexpert opinion that the trick-cyclists, by no means for the first time, are talking through their hats. The number of eminent people who reached their peak at twenty-four and then declined could, we submit, be counted without difficulty on three-toed sloth, with lots of toes left over.

A Name for the Medical Miler

The Times (London)

THE taste for eloquence is going out. We no longer confer on our heroes such titles of gorgeous fancy as we once did.

A little less than a hundred years ago there was a famous runner, a Seneca Indian called Bennett. A few lucky people still possess copies of a print showing him with an eagle's feather bound to his brow and something in the nature of a petticoat of red, blue and yellow round his waist. He was given the name—as romantic as it was appropriate, of Deerfoot.

Today we are all in an ecstatic condition over a more illustrious runner, Roger Bannister, but, though we take that freedom with his christian name, we have made no effort of imagination for him. We have not even followed the old fashion of the Ring, with its fighting tinman, oilman, coachman, navigator, or greatest of all, gasman.

To call this now thrice-belted knight the Lightning or Flying or merely Running Doctor would be admittedly prosaic, but we cannot attain to that modest height. Yet runners had been picturesquely entitled even before Deerfoot.

Some ten years or so earlier the North Star, the American Deer, and the Lame Chicken—the pen falters in writing down names so beautiful—ran a mile race on the Slough road before a mighty concourse.

And what of the Greenwich Cowboy, who flourished long before the days of "Westerns" and, perhaps most chaste and classical of all, of George Frost, the Suffolk Stag. With these examples before him someone might have a divine impulse.

Such moments of inspiration do come even in these sterile times. Mrs. Marjory Jackson Nelson, who retired for ever at Vancouver trailing clouds of glory, has been called by some felicitous pen, the Blue Flash. That is in the best manner, with its suggestion of a vivid streak of light such as a great sprinter can produce.

Again when Mr. Grantland Rice, most celebrated of the sporting journalists of the United States, died the other day, his obituary notice cited one of his raciest notions. On a sudden inspiration he had christened the back field of a Notre Dame football team the Four Horsemen and the name had gone round America.

Too often, however, the authentic touch is missing and such inventions seem only trivial and vulgar.

For two consecutive years in the late eighties the same eight garsmen rowed in the Cambridge boat. Somebody wanted to call them the Lightning Crew but the attempt failed and today only suggests a journalist, with a wet towel round his head, trying very hard.

No doubt distance lends some enchantment to the view in these matters. The Nonpareil and the Lion of Kent have a grander sound than those tremendous Australian bowlers, the Demon and the Terror, though those were very well in their way. We can hardly hope to see a Black Diamond and a Young Rump Steak such as they who once fought their battle on Ruvston Heath. Never again will anyone be, as was the immortal Hen Pearce, "scientifically denominated the Game Chicken."

It may be that "for everything there is a time and a season" and that the time for these names is past; and yet surely we ought to be able to do something for Dr. Bannister.

EDUCATIONAL CRUX Teaching requires large numbers of people, far larger than other professions; the average must be correspondingly lower. Then the work is laborious and often discouraging, the salaries modest to low. How can the average calibre of those in the teaching profession be anything but the same? This is the crux of our educational problem.

—Prof. Arthur Lower, in Saturday Night.

Hands Off

THEY'VE been married a year, and they're still in that wonderful stage of quarrelling and making up.

The things they quarrel over are so silly and so unimportant. Like John's hiking boots, for instance, and Mary's fall hat.

One Saturday, John went hiking up the Island with some of the men from the office. (Mary felt hurt at being left behind. She'd been looking forward to Saturday all the week.) It rained heavily around midday, and John was tired, wet and hungry when he got home.

All the way over the Malahat, he was picturing Mary waiting with the house warm, dinner ready and maybe a hot rum.

But Mary wasn't even home. She'd left a note to say she'd gone to see her girl friend.

John pulled off his soaking boots and socks and set them by the register in the living room, where they made a big brown puddle on the polished floor.

Mary saw the puddle when she came home, feeling guilty but determined not to let the guilty feeling show.

"Muddy boots and filthy socks in the living room," she said. "I've never seen anything so stummy in my life. I'm not going to live with a man who's half a savage."

John tried to laugh it off and hide his hurt by saying that it was the savage in him that had attracted her in the first place. But Mary wasn't in that kind of mood. She said so, and the quarrel was on.

It stayed on for several days. Neither won out in the end, but John said he'd never put his boots in the living room again, and Mary swore she'd never, never be out any more when he came home tired and hungry.

The hat crisis blew up suddenly. Mary wore the hat home and looked, John thought, quite lovely and quite crazy. Like a fool and a man, he didn't mention the loveliness. He did, however, mention the craziness. The hat was a wicked waste of his money, he said.

Something died in Mary right there, and she was far too proud to tell him that she'd bought the hat to please him and make him feel he'd picked a smart and pretty wife. To hide all this from the crass stupidity of the male she picked on the remark about wasted money.

She'd given up her job because he'd wanted her to, she said. Well, she could get it back any time she wanted and then she'd have her own pay cheque once again, and buy all the hats she liked. So there, Mr. Tightwad.

The trouble with John and Mary is they haven't had it tough yet. Mary doesn't know what it's like to get up half a dozen times in the night for a crying baby, and then do all her normal tasks next day and still be cheerful and attractive when John gets back from work. She hasn't come home from an operation and started working too soon because John and the children can't manage without her.

John hasn't been out of work and worried sick because the pay cheques stopped and the household expenses are still going on.

They haven't experienced the awful pang of terror as a small child dashes into the street right in the path of an approaching car. They haven't, so far, watched a sick child tossing and talking wildly in crimson-cheeked delirium.

They don't know what it's like to stay awake hour after hour waiting for an adolescent to come home from a party, or to let their imaginations run riot over drunken drivers on the road and teen-agers trying to push their hot rods to the limit.

They'll learn all these things in time. And then they'll laugh over the funny little quarrels of their intolerant youth.

Meanwhile, they're doing fine. They'll go on doing fine if well-meaning friends and relatives will keep hands off, and let a normal marriage work itself out in a normal way.

YOUR HEALTH

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

Rehabilitation Institutes

Dr. Alvarez is Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic and Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation.

THE other day I went with my friend, Dr. Paul B. Magnuson, to see the new Rehabilitation Institute which is being developed in Chicago. Dr. Magnuson, a great orthopedist, has given up his private practice, and, without salary, is now going to devote the rest of his days to putting disabled people on their feet again.

Today, one of the greatest advances being made in medicine is along the lines of restoring to health and a job many of the persons who, formerly, after a serious illness or injury, were thrown on the rubbish heap of humanity, and there forgotten. Many of them were never able to get back to work because, with weakened muscles, they could never go into the shop and work eight hours the first day. Many an amputee could not afford to buy an artificial limb, or if he could buy it, there was no one to teach him how to use it, or how to get about on it.

Most persons with a broken back spent the rest of their days lying paralyzed in a bed. Today, experts get them out, first into a wheel chair and then up onto crutches. They give them back hope and morale, and in some institutes they start right in teaching them an occupation. Then they place them with some company where they can do remunerative work. A man with an artificial leg may learn to run an elevator or to assemble machine parts, or repair radios, or handle a typewriter or an adding machine.

Many employers are learning that these rehabilitated men and women make good and faithful employees. They are so glad to have a good job and kind boss that they don't quit every time some little annoyance comes up. Out of a 1,000 persons who were recently placed in jobs in New York City by Dr. Howard Rusk's group, only one failed to make good.

Some months ago I went with Dr. Rusk through his great hospital in New York and it was one of the most thrilling and stimulating experiences of my life. Similar miracles of rehabilitation are now taking place in the new institute in Chicago.

Dr. Alvarez

Some fine people are giving the money that is needed at the start. Chicago must have half a million handicapped persons, and many of them could easily be rehabilitated. Then, instead of their costing the community great sum of money, they could start making money, and supporting themselves. There are many industries and insurance companies which could not save themselves large sums in compensation payments by shortening the periods of disability of the persons for whom they are responsible.

By taking many people off of public relief rolls, the taxpayers could be helped. In Illinois the average earning of a group of handicapped persons before rehabilitation was only $608.98 a year. After spending on these people an average of $444 per person, their annual earnings jumped to $2,462.20. Obviously, it can well repay a city to rehabilitate many of its sick and injured.

It would be wonderful if many public-spirited people would drop in at 401 E. Ohio Street, to get an idea of the work that is being done there. Eventually, such a place can become self-supporting, but at the start it needs help.

As I write this, I hear that Los Angeles now has a placement centre for handicapped people. I read, also, of splendid work along these lines being done in New York State, and I read of expanding facilities for rehabilitation in the U.S. Department of Labor, office of vocational rehabilitation in the U.S. Miss Mary E. Switzer, able director of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, recently reported that in the last year, jobs have been found for 4,400 deaf men and women.

A SALT-POOR DIET IS DANGEROUS IN SUMMER

At a recent meeting of the Illinois State Medical Society, the committee on nutrition warned people not to go on a salt-poor diet as a fad or because they think it will lower their blood pressure, or help their heart. The committee was particularly urgent in warning people not to go on a sodium-poor diet during the summer months when, with heavy perspiration, much salt is lost from the body. Both the sodium and the chlorine in table salt are needed by the body, and it is not wise to go without them unless one is being well watched in a hospital for the beginning symptoms of a collapse.

Man Nabbed With $139,000 Stolen From Spokane Bank

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP)—Police arrested a 21-year-old man in a house filled with loaded guns Saturday and said they recovered $139,000 taken Friday in the robbery of the Dishman State Bank.

Detectives Alfred Stoesser and Menzo A. Clinton said the man admitted the bold daylight robbery, one of the biggest in Northwest history.

They had gone to the house on a tip that a man was painting a red car in a garage behind a house on Spokane's east side. They knocked.

"The guy let us in," Stoesser said, "and when Clinton started to look around he pulled a gun on me in the bathroom and said, 'You move and I'll kill you.'"

"Well, he wound up in the bathtub and I wound up with the gun. Then he told me, 'You'll find the bank money in a suitcase under the bed.'"

Police said the man gave the name George Quatsling.

Police said Henderson would stand trial here on charges of forgery "involving a great deal of money."

Henderson, former manager of Peerless Products Ltd., of Vancouver, disappeared July 31 after leaving a suicide note.

Liberals Having Difficulty Finding Candidates—Hees

OTTAWA (CP)—George Hees, president of the Progressive Conservative Association of Canada, said today the Liberal party has difficulty finding candidates to run in six federal by-elections.

"It is the government's inability to persuade candidates to run which is causing the date of the by-elections to be put off from week to week," Mr. Hees said in a statement.

Federal by-elections now are expected to be called for either Nov. 1 or Nov. 8. Previous speculation had the by-elections scheduled for Oct. 18 or Oct. 25. Mr. Hees said the Liberals

N.Z. Doctor Disintegrates Clouds by 'Creative Realism'

ORILLIA, Ont. (CP) — Dr. Rolf Alexander, 63-year-old New Zealand physician now living here, Sunday gave a demonstration to prove a claim that the brain has vast stores of untapped energy. The experiment was staged in Couchiching park here before an audience of 50 persons and involved making three clouds disintegrate or disappear by what he calls "creative realism."

He chose a cloud and then, claiming to bring his powers of energy transmission into use by concentrating on the cloud, it disappeared in about three minutes. The same procedure was followed on two other clouds. Several persons claimed they saw other clouds, not targets of Dr. Alexander's experiment, disappear at the same time. Dr. Alexander agreed that other clouds were probably being broken up by atmospheric conditions, but said he doubted if any broke up as rapidly as his target clouds. He said the experiment was to demonstrate his theory that the prefrontal lobe of the brain can and does radiate some unknown form of energy that has never been measured by science, although the bioelectric energy from the rest of the brain has been found by the use of electrodes.

'Finnie' Fletcher
Of McGill Fame Dies

MONTREAL (CP)—Gilbert H. "Finnie" Fletcher, one of McGill University's best-loved sons, died here Sunday after a long illness.

A graduate in arts in 1911, he served for 25 years as secretary-treasurer of the McGill student society.

MISS AMERICA—Brunette Lee Ann Meriwether, the California beauty who says she was "saved" by the flat-chested fashions of Christian Dior, was in New York today to begin cashing in on the charm that won her the title of Miss America of 1955. The slender, 19-year-old dramatic student from San Francisco moved into the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel and prepared for a year-long reign that will reap her at least $50,000 in public appearance fees. Miss Meriwether is 5 ft. 7 1/2 ins., weighs 124 pounds and has a 34 1/2 ins. bust. Her waist is 22 ins. and her hips 35. She was crowned Miss America at Atlantic City Saturday night.

Attlee Stumps Mao On Living Standards

'Imperialist Exploitation' Reply
Doesn't Apply to Scandinavians

(Editorial Note: This is the fifth of seven articles by former British Prime Minister Clement R. Attlee, following his three-week tour of Communist China. A sixth article will appear Monday.)

By THE RT. HON. CLEMENT ATLEE
SYDNEY—After our visit to the industrial northeast of China we returned to Peking to stay for a few days. Despite the noise of motor horns, I found it pleasant to be back in the city.

Although we had already visited the Forbidden City with its parks and temples, and also the Temple of Heaven, there were still beauties unrevealed. This we learned when we entered through a lofty gate in a great red wall and found ourselves driving around a lake to visit Mao Tse-tung at his house.

This had been the palace of the old empress (Tzu Hsi), and on an island in the lake was the place where she kept imprisoned her stepson, the real emperor, at the beginning of the present century.

We enjoyed a three-hour talk with Mao Tse-tung and his chief colleagues. The talk was frank on both sides. He explained the aims and methods of the People's government, while we tried to enlighten him on the views of the Labor party and of British democracy.

The discussion was vigorous but quite friendly. Toward the end of the meeting we were talking of the way to achieve peace. The Chinese expressed the view that the United States was aggressive and was seeking to build up a ring of subordinate states from Japan to Indo-China.

Tried to Show Chinese Other Side

This exchange was part of a general debate in which we, on our side, tried to show the Chinese the other side to questions on which they seemed only to appreciate the Russian point of view.

On various matters one tended to get the stock Communist answer. For instance, on the standard of life they maintained that our superior standard was due to our exploitation of the colonies. When I asked them to explain how Denmark, Sweden and Norway were also high in the scale, though they had no colonies, they could not answer. It was indeed disturbing to hear their views on this question of standards, which I had tried to relate to the balance between population and resources.

The attitude of the Chinese government on the question of population appeared to be that increase of population was in itself a good thing. They estimated an increase of 12 millions a year, and when questioned on the pressure of population on the means of subsistence, they said there was still much undeveloped land. When it was pointed out that this was a short-term answer, and when the experience of other nations, India, for instance, was quoted, they said that what was required was more productivity.

When it was suggested that the important thing was the relationship between production and the number of consumers, and that what was desirable was a higher standard of life, they could give no effective reply, except to say that China regarded a large population as desirable, as tending to increase production of commodities.

They seemed to think that some restraint was possible in the towns, but not in the country. It was admitted that rural housing would need decades to bring it up to the standard of the towns. Yet, this standard, from our point of view, is deplorably low.

The world is faced, therefore with a government that is prepared to see its population of a staunch old friend

600,000,000 increase to 700,000,000 or 800,000,000 in the next two decades. Not only is there no policy of restraint but there is actual encouragement toward intense fruitfulness.

I think that the real reason for this is that China, being admittedly a backward country, hopes to make up in quantity what it lacks in quality, in order to achieve a position of power in the world. This is a disturbing thought.

I found Mao Tse-tung an impressive character with a quiet strength, which one would expect to find in a man of his achievements. He pointed out that there were colleagues of his present during our meeting who were not Communists, and some indeed who had formerly been connected with other regimes.

Victoria Daily Times MONDAY, SEPT. 13, 1954 7

Except for Premier-Foreign Minister Chou En-lai, however, I did not get a very clear impression of the other leaders, though I gathered that some are thought to be more rigid followers of Marx-Lenin-Stalin than others.

In the course of our stay, various special visits were made by my colleagues. Two of them visited a prison, others had talks on trade. Regarding the latter I do not think that one can expect a great development. Dr. Edith Summerskill and Aneurin Bevan looked into the health situation. Along with me, others visited the university.

It is right to say that we moved about freely and that I know of no instance where we were denied any access which we desired. But, of course, it is not possible in a short visit to look beneath the surface.

I do not know if there is, as in other Communist countries, an elaborate system of spying and a ubiquitous secret police. I make no pretense of having exhaustive knowledge of the Chinese People's Republic, but I doubt whether many of those who give confident judgments in newspapers on both sides of the Atlantic really know very much more.

Shamrocks Take City's Good Wishes With Them

Several hundred lacrosse fans turned up at Patricia Bay Airport Sunday afternoon to wish the Shamrocks well in their quest for the Mann Cup Dominion lacrosse championship at Peterborough. Above, shown preparing to leave by TCA for Vancouver, are members of the Rocks; below, a portion of crowd waves farewell as the plane taxis away from the hangar.

Rocks Arrive in East, Get Big Send-Off Here

Baker Predicts Victory

By BILL WALKER
Victoria Shamrocks got a rousing send-off Sunday as they hit the skies for Peterborough and their second-straight Mann Cup boxa date with the Trailermen.

Close to 600 fans were on hand at Patricia Bay airport to wish the Irish well in the Dominion lacrosse championships. The scene was reminiscent, to a lesser degree, of the time four years ago when upwards of 1,500 lacrosse fanatics crowded into the airport hangar early one morning to do homage to the Rocks.

That was the occasion when the Irish stole the hearts of everyone with their pulsating five-game series victory over North Shore Indians in the Inter-city League semifinals in their first year of competition. That time it was "well done."

This time it was "bring it back."

One could hear the phrase on every side; "it" being the Mann Cup.

The answering Shamrock theme was "We'll do our best."

In regard to the series opening Wednesday at Peterborough's Miller Bowl, team manager Ralph Baker said:

"You see what they've picked up, but I still think we can take it (the series) in six games."

Baker was referring to Peterborough's acquisition of Jim McNulty and Tony D'Amico from Hamilton and Jim Bradshaw of St. Catharines. All three are rated with the best in the east.

The Rocks meanwhile countered with three replacements of their own—Jake Proctor, coach of the Indians, Lew Landess of New Westminster Royals and Arnie Duggan, coach of Nanaimo Native Sons.

Landess was a late acquisition, Proctor confirming his acceptance Saturday night. Duggan accepted his post Friday.

For Duggan, who left with the Shamrocks from Victoria, it will be a real homecoming. His home is in Peterborough and it was with the Trailermen that he achieved his greatest fame.

Those leaving here Sunday included goalie George Johnston, spare goalie Jim Hetherington, Nip O'Hearn and family, Archie Browning and family, Bob Monaghan, Jack Thompson, Al Gill, Arnold Ferguson, Jack Northup, Larry Booth, Bill Bamford, Tom Druce, trainer Dusty Mair, Baker, Duggan, and team secretary Jack Bacon.

Coach Red McMillan, Proctor and Landess joined the club in Vancouver. Jack Blonda, Whitey Severson and Jack Sibbald left by car last week.

Unable to make the trip were Norm Baker and Harry Irwin. Trainer Deans Blackstock and club director Wil Wilson plan to fly east Tuesday.

Farewells were long and touching, and most of the throng stayed until the TCA plane, 20 minutes late in leaving, was airborne.

And not one doubted that the Irish would "do our best" to "bring it back."

'Glad to Have You, Arnie'

Series Dates Confusing

(Special to the Times)

TORONTO—As Victoria Shamrocks arrived here at Malton Airport early this morning, and almost immediately left by bus for Peterborough and the Mann Cup lacrosse championship, the first rhubarb showed signs of developing.

Scheduled to open the best-of-seven series for the Dominion title against Peterborough Trailermen Wednesday night, the Rocks were hit by a quandary concerning other playoff dates.

According to previous information supplied team manager Ralph Baker series dates for the second and third games were given as Friday, Sept. 17, and Saturday, Sept. 18.

However, according to preliminary advice received here, the third game is not scheduled until Monday, Sept. 20, other dates being Sept. 22, 24, 27 and 29.

Under the previous schedule, the series was slated to conclude Sept. 25.

Someone undoubtedly is in error and it is just as certain that the discrepancy will be explained later today.

Meanwhile, the Rocks survived the air trip without incident.

NO CASUALTIES

Larry Booth was suffering from a slight cold and spare goalie Jim Hetherington from an injured hand occasioned in the western series finals against PNE Indians. They are the only near casualties of the moment.

Following their arrival in Peterborough, the Irish have a workout planned on the dirt floor at Miller Bowl, scene of the series.

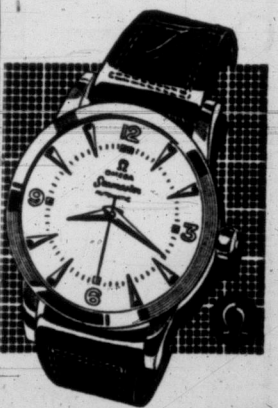

In this regard, Shamrock defenseman Nip O'Hearn said the dirt surface shouldn't be too much of a handicap to overcome as the special composition of the floor is such that it is virtually a "hard-pack."

Team coach Red McMillan, who joined the club in Vancouver along with replacements Lew Landess and Jake Proctor, has so far declined to predict the series outcome, except to reiterate that he figures the Rocks at least "25 per cent stronger" than the team which lost to Peterborough in Victoria last year, four games to one.

Farmers Split at Chemainus

Farmer Construction and Chemainus Red Sox are all even in their best-of-five B.C. senior amateur baseball playoff semifinal series.

Playing Sunday at Chemainus, the two teams split a double-header. Farmers taking the first game, 5-0, on Norm Forbes' four-hitter and dropping a close 5-4 decision in the second contest.

Farmers now are scheduled to host Chemainus in a double-header at Royal Athletic Park this Sunday. Game times are 1:30 and 5 p.m.

Winners of the series will meet a mainland championship club for the B.C. crown.

Farmers, however, will be without the services of pitchers Forbes and Bill Garner, who leave Victoria this week to return to the University of Oregon.

Alec Fisher New Champion At Horseshoes

Annual Contest At Bowen Park

NANAIMO — Horseshoe pitching championship of Vancouver Island changed hands and locality Sunday when "Ringer" Alec Fisher, Comox, defeated finalist George Wicks of Nanaimo in the playdowns at Bowen Park pitch.

R. Jago, Victoria's top pitcher and singles champion of 1952 and '53, was eliminated by D. MacKenzie of Courtenay, who in turn was beaten by teammate Fisher, who won the James Adam Cup.

Victoria Daily Times doubles challenge cup, shared in the last two years by Fisher and Jago, was won by the team of Fisher and MacKenzie of Courtenay.

DROPPED SHOE

Championship singles between Fisher and Wicks gave the gallery some thrills when Wicks took an early lead of five points at the quarter mark. While Fisher had the misfortune to let a horseshoe slip from his hand during the rain to widen the margin, Wicks ran into trouble and dropped three consecutive ends to Fisher, who took the lead past the half way mark. He finished with 50 to Wicks' 46.

Last year's champ, R. Jago, lacking practice, was off form and finished out of the finals.

The Daily Times challenge trophy, presented in 1933, was first won by J. A. Ryan and H. Mitchell, and except for war years and 1934, it has been in constant competition. In 1949 the trophy was won by brothers C. and R. Leachman, top flight Victoria pair.

Official opening took place at 2 p.m. when Ole Finney, fair manager, introduced H. J. Bruch, MLA, guest speaker.

The midway was operated by Langford and District Lions Club, and Happy Valley Women's Institute served luncheon. Absent from the fair was W. P. Hobbs, who suffered a fall from the new display building while working with other volunteers to complete the building in time for the fair.

The fair closed with an evening dance at the hall.

False Teeth Often Have a Certain Odor!

Soak your plates in Polident daily to avoid "Denture Breath"

Polident is the specially designed cleanser that keeps false teeth—and breath—clean and fresh always. Follow these simple rules:

1. Never use a brush on them! Your denture plates are much softer than natural teeth. Brushing wears down fitting ridges so they get loose.

2. Never use soap or toothpaste! They can leave film which collects bacteria and food particles, a major cause of offensive "Denture Breath."

3. Use a soaking-type cleanser made for false teeth only. Polident Polident is the denture cleanser recommended by more dentists than any other. No brushing, no handling of soapy plates that can slip and break. Polident gets where a brush can't reach. Polident cleanses, whitens, and gives false teeth odor-free. Burglar Caught In Shop

Bakery Thief Pleads Guilty

A man who was caught red-handed when he broke into Arnold's Bakery Ltd. at 1513 Douglas early Sunday was remanded following a plea of guilty to a breaking and entering charge in city police court today.

Sentencing of Andrew Brown, 1054 Princess, was deferred to Thursday by Magistrate H. C. Hall who asked for a probation officer's report before passing sentence.

Constable R. Wainwright told the court that he had found a door unlocked at the bakery while making a routine check of business premises at 2:20 a.m. He entered and found the accused crouched inside.

Bakery officials notified the police today that $21 was missing from the office cash.

Britannia Branch Reports Second Theft in Month

Two pinball machines and a juke box were broken open and robbed overnight at the Britannia Branch, Canadian Legion, but there was no sign of forced entry to the building. Caretakers told police the machines had not been broken into before 7:30 p.m. Sunday.

It was the second time the pinball machines had been robbed since Aug. 23, when thieves had also tried to break into a huge office safe by burrowing through a wall.

DROODLES

Whenever I see a Doodle that has anything to do with Indians I immediately think of the Lone Ranger who is my favorite radio and TV personality. I like Mr. Ranger and his Indian sidekick, Tonto and enjoy their adventures. I especially liked the time Mr. Ranger made friends with the Blackfoot Indians by showing them how to disguise themselves by soaking their feet in peroxide. But I wasn't he have more friends? Why is he so lonely? Won't his best friend (Tonto) tell him? Hasn't he ever heard of chlorophyll? Doesn't he Lux his chaps? Could it be he's never learned to "Mambo"? If Mr. Ranger reads this I hope he gets in touch with me. I'd like him to meet my sister Thelma. She's lonesome too.

ARCHBISHOP STARTLED BY BURSTING BULB

"I thought I was shot," Archbishop of Canterbury Geoffrey Fisher was quoted as saying Sunday when a photographer's flash-bulb exploded nearby.

His Grace was dedicating the northwest tower and window of Christ Church Cathedral, and several news photographers were taking pictures.

Then, as will some times happen, a bulb burst with the sound of a shot.

It was easily heard in the adjacent portion of the church.

There was a second or two of startled silence, then the ceremony proceeded.

When the late King George VI and Queen Elizabeth visited here in the '30s, the same thing happened. Photographed while dining, a photo bulb burst and blew all over their food.

For the remainder of the tour the Royal couple were extremely reluctant about being approached too closely by men with cameras.

Procession to Christ Church Cathedral, through leafed bower, preceded Sunday service, at which Archbishop of Canterbury delivered sermon. Centre, in cope and mitre walks the Primate behind his son, Temple Fisher, bearing primatial cross. Crozier bearer at head of procession is Rev. E. F. Berry, cathedral curate, followed by Most Rev. Theft of $4,000 Microwave Unit Adds to CKDA Transmission Woes

Radio station CKDA, plagued by troubles since its news transmitter opened at Chatham Island, ran into new grief today.

Station engineers said a $4,000 microwave unit in a metal box and plywood case was stolen from a pole on Caddo Bay Road north of Uplands gate.

CKDA's microwave equipment broke down early last week and the station was forced to relay tape recorded programs to the transmitter by plane.

The latest trouble meant station employees had to tape record more programs by 6 a.m. today, and airlift them over to the island.

The equipment stolen measures 20 by 15 by 10 inches and is valueless for anything except "radio operation."

"It must have been straightvandalism," a spokesman said.

The station was expected to get back into normal operation this afternoon with equipment borrowed from KVOS in Bellingham.

VICTORIANS ANSWER HURRY-UP BLOOD CALL

Victoria Red Cross revealed today that a group of volunteer blood donors saved the life of a patient undergoing surgery at St. Joseph's Hospital Sunday.

Blood bank officials said they received an emergency call for 12 pints of "O negative" blood and then discovered they had none on hand. An appeal was broadcast and within five minutes more donors than were needed had volunteered.

The Red Cross could not divulge the name of the patient.

Mr. Justice Davey Joins Appeal Court

Mr. Justice H. W. Davey will sit for the first time as a justice of the British Columbia Appeal Court when the Fall session of the court begins at 11 a.m. at the courthouse Tuesday.

The Victoria barrister was elevated to the bench in March 1953 and was named to the B.C. Court of Appeal early this summer but his appointment did not become effective until this month.

His appointment followed passage of a bill recently by parliament which authorized an extra judge for the Appeal Court Bench. In the past the Bench has been composed of five judges.

Listed for hearing are 60 criminal and civil appeals.

Among the criminal cases are several appeals against drug convictions.

The court will also hear the appeal of Lawrence Bryant Vincent of Vancouver, sentenced to be hanged following a conviction of murder arising out of the strangulation of a young girl.

Six Cases Slated for Fall Assizes

Trial of James John Gatsyn, charged with theft, will be the first case to come up before the Fall Criminal Assizes to open at the Courthouse Tuesday at 10:30 a.m.

Mr. Justice A. M. Manson will preside. R. A. Wootton, Q.C., will act as Crown prosecutor.

Gatsyn is accused of stealing a steel measuring tape from the office of Dr. W. E. M. Mitchell, 620 View Street.

There are five other cases listed for trial. Among these are the cases of Philip Henry LeBrun, charged with stealing timber over the value of $200 from the National Defense property at Rocky Point, and Thomas Patrick Welsh, at- tempted rape.

May Shorten Fire Season

Forestry department officials will decide in about two weeks whether to shorten B.C. forest fire season.

The decision will depend on the weather between now and the end of this month. For the first time this year, the season will end October 31.

However, B.C. this year is enjoying a record-breaking season for lack of forest fires, and withdrawal of fire season regulations at the end of September by order-in-council now is a definite possibility.

A forestry department spokesman said "it is a little early to say right now, but if the weather continues as it has been, there is no doubt the season will be cut short."

The October 31 close was set at the spring session of the Legislature after a succession of years in which hot dry weather threatened forests weeks after the usual September 31 season ending.

Now members of Chartered Life Underwriters' Association are three Victoria representatives of two national insurance companies. They are Charles R. Berry and Charles M. Day, of London Life Insurance Co., and V. A. Ridgeway of Mutual Life.

Insanity Law Commission Begins Hearings in City

A noted Vancouver psychiatrist today told the Victoria session of the federal Royal Commission on the law of insanity as a defense in criminal cases that a trial judge should be allowed to modify sentence on the basis of psychiatric evidence.

Dr. G. H. Stevenson, of the University of British Columbia narcotics research committee, said juries should be charged only with determining whether or not the accused committed a criminal act.

"The trial judge should have the option of imposing intermediate sentence, in murder trials, rather than hanging, on the basis of evidence presented by a psychiatrist, or a psychiatric board," he said.

The commission held its first session in Victoria today at the Legislative buildings. It is headed by Hon. J. C. McRuer, Chief Justice of the High Court for Ontario. Vice-chairman is Gustave Desrochers, assistant superintendent, St. Michel Hospital, Quebec; and members are Her Honor, Judge Helen Kin- near, Judge of the County Court of Hallamand, Cayuga, Ont.; Robert O. Jones, professor of psychiatry, Dalhousie University, Halifax; and Joseph Harris, president of the Great West Life Assurance Co., Winnipeg.

Dr. Stevenson was the only person making a submission at the morning session.

He said the present laws were inadequate in that they do not provide for any shade or modification; in effect, a person must either be completely insane or completely sane.

He said judges should be allowed some discretion in handling cases in which the defense seeks a ruling of insanity, be-

"Direct and bless, we pray Thee, our efforts to complete this House for Thy worship and service," intones the Archbishop of Canterbury, dedicating new tower and memorial window at Christ Church Cathedral. Okanagan May Get British Apple Orders

If the British apple market opens this year—as has been hinted—B.C. may be supplying all U.K. requirements following hurricane damage over the week-end to Nova Scotia's Annapolis Valley crop. Agriculture Minister Kenneth Kiernan said today.

"If the market is opened, it probably would have been split between Canada's two largest apple growing regions," he said.

Hurricane damage to the Annapolis crop was estimated at $3,000,000. Growers there along with apple growers in the Okanagan had been hoping for a resumption of trade with Great Britain this year, and disposal of most of their yield, Mr. Kiernan said.

"We do most certainly regret their misfortune," the minister said. "They had been hoping for a number of years, as we have, to get back into the Old Country market this year."

NOT CLARIFIED

Mr. Kiernan said the prospects of selling B.C.'s apples to the U.K. this year are not yet clarified. "We have nothing concrete," he said.

He said a definite sales picture would not appear until after the crop, which is down slightly this year due to heavy early frosts, has been harvested.

Picking has just started in Okanagan orchards.

Four Make Bids For Last Portion Of PGE Sub-Grade

Tenders were opened today on the final sub-grade contract for the southern extension of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway.

Four bids were received for the portion of the roadbed from Mile 27 to Mile 32.8 between North Vancouver and Squamish.

Lowest bid submitted was that of Emil Anderson Construction Co., $1,199,581. Others were Manix Construction Co., Calgary, $1,381,370; Campbell & Bennett Construction Co., $1,226,800 and General Construction Co., $1,228,750.

Contract award will be announced by the provincial government shortly.

Tuesday Trial Set on Rodeo Cruelty Charge

Owner of horses and cattle used for the Duncan Rodeo and four mainland cowboys, will appear in Duncan police court Tuesday to face charges of cruelty to animals in connection with the wild west show.

The men charged are Foss Hoy of Cloverdale, who supplied livestock for the rodeo held at the Cowichan fairgrounds Friday and Saturday; David Perry of Cache Creek, George White of Cloverdale, Roy Jeffrey and James Grant, both of Burnaby.

President of the Victoria Anti-Rodeo Society, Mrs. Judith Zach, with Capt. James Barr and Florence Barr, laid the charges in Duncan Police Court Saturday morning after watching the rodeo performance on Friday evening.

Mr. Hoy is accused of permitting unnecessary suffering to his horses and cattle by "wantonly allowing them to be bound and abused."

RODEO PLANNED HERE

The Duncan case is being watched with interest by the Vic-Van Isle Kinsmen Club which is staging a rodeo at the Western Speedway, Sept. 30 to Oct. 2.

Gerry Peth of Bow, Wash., a member of the firm supplying the livestock for the Kinsmen rodeo, said today there isn't any similarity between the Duncan and Victoria shows, except both are rodeos.

He pointed out that regulations of the Canadian and U.S. Cowboys' Protective Association will be applied at the Victoria show. The chutes will be better constructed and the horses will have more room to move about, he said.

William Bradley, City Contractor, Dies in Hospital

William Bradley, Victoria building contractor, died early this morning in Royal Jubilee Hospital in his 75th year.

Mr. Bradley, a resident here for more than 40 years, lived at 47 Maddock Avenue. Born in Nottingham, Eng., he learned the building trade there before coming to Canada in 1910. He and his son, Herbert, entered the contracting business about 20 years ago. Their firm of Bradley & Bradley was concerned primarily with home building.

Mr. Bradley was active in the firm until last March when ill health forced him to retire.

He leaves his wife, Jessie, at home; three sons, Herbert and Leslie, both of Victoria; Archie, in Richmond, Cal., and one daughter, Ivy, in Victoria.

Funeral arrangements will be made later.

Impaired Driver Under Suspension Pays $300 Fine

George William Newton, 667 Ralph Street, who had his license suspended last Thursday for a traffic violation, pleaded guilty today to impaired driving on Saturday night.

Magistrate H. C. Hall told the accused, "If you drive again while under suspension, it will mean jail without option."

Newton was fined $250 or 12 days jail for the impaired charge and an additional $50 or 10 days for driving while suspended. Sanich police had stopped him while driving erratically on Hastings Street. He appeared in Sanich court.

Membership Increase Reported by Kiwanis

Pacific Northwest Kiwanis International District registered an increase in both the number of clubs and the number of members, Harold C. Jones, district secretary, told Kiwanians here today.

He presented his secretary's report at the opening session of the 37th annual district convention at the Empress Hotel this morning. Mr. Jones, who has been secretary for 31 of the 37 meetings, outlined the growth of Kiwanis in the Pacific Northwest, the only international district in the organization.

"In Yakima a year ago, we reported 203 clubs in our district with 11,138 members. Today we have 220 clubs with 11,790 on the rolls," he said.

An estimated 1,500 delegates will attend the convention. By noon more than 1,300 had registered.

Presiding is district governor C. E. "Tommy" Thompson of Redmond, Oregon.

The conference opened this morning in the ballroom of the Empress Hotel with greetings from the mayor.

800 AT CHURCH

International secretary O. E. Peterson of Chicago, official representative of the Kiwanis central organization, will deliver the major address at a dinner Tuesday night honoring newly-elected officers.

Sunday evening more than 800 delegates and wives attended memorial services in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

KIWANIANS LIKE VILLAGE PLAN

Victoria's Kiwanis Village may be the prototype of similar projects in the Pacific Northwest.

A model of the village is on display at the Kiwanis convention in the Empress Hotel.

Ed Mallek, one of those responsible for the Victoria project, has been kept busy answering questions by note-taking delegates.

Several delegates say they'll suggest their home clubs duplicate the Victoria project.

Rev. J. Lewis McLean, moderator of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, conducted the service, assisted by Rev. Dr. E. H. James of Metropolitan United, and Major Walter Oakley of the Salvation Army.

Miss Irene Byatt was soloist.

This afternoon, delegates are at "clinics" reviewing problems relating to Kiwanis work. All meetings followed the convention theme of "Build by Faith, Service and Loyalty."

Tonight Kiwanians will attend a giant smorgasbord at the Crystal Garden, a band concert in the Empress Hotel grounds, and the Governor's Ball and reception in the Empress.

At Tuesday morning's session, which will be highlighted by an address by Dr. Brook Chisholm of Victoria, new officers will be elected.

Police Fail in Hunt For Man of Mystery

An RCMP-Sanich police search for a suspicious man in the Keating Crossroad area Saturday petered out before dark and was not resumed Sunday.

The manhunt, aided by a police trained dog brought from Parksville, began after Mrs. W. Sadler at Beaver Lake reported seeing a bearded man skulking in the bushes. Police investigated because the man acted like a fugitive, according to Mrs. Sadler. The same impression was held by a man who sighted him later near Oldfield Road.

The public had been alerted in that area by press and radio at police request, and though many persons phoned in leads, the mysterious stranger has not been found.

A trail followed by the dog seemed to skirt all homes and almost circle Beaver and Elk Lake. Police had asked anyone sighting the man to phone in.

ASK The TIMES

Q.—Places where liquor is sold must be kept closed on every election day. Was there ever a time when saloons and other places did business as usual? —T.W.B.

A.—An item in the Daily Times of July 4, 1905, states that "all saloons will be closed tomorrow, the Legislature at the last session having passed the following clause: 'No saloons or restaurants or strong drinks shall be sold, given or provided or at any hotel, shop, tavern or other place within the limits of any electoral district during the whole of the polling day at any election for a member or members to serve in the Legislative Assembly in this province, and every one who violates the provision of this section shall be liable for every such offence to a penalty not exceeding $100 and costs, and to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months in default of payment of such penalty.'"

Search by the Times has thus far failed to disclose any clause of the effect in B.C. law before that date. Nowadays the ban on liquor-selling at any place in a riding or ridings in which there is polling comes in the form of an order from the Liquor Control Board.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to The Times, addressed to "Ask The Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums.

Again Remanded

Joseph Bithell, RR 1, Mount Newton Cross Road, and John Edwin Sanders, Government Street, were each remanded to next Monday in city police court today. They are charged with gross indecency. Each is represented by counsel, who petitioned the court for remand without electing where they wished to be tried or entering plea.

Novelty 'Phones, Candelabra Hold Vials of Fragrance

By PENNY SAVER

Women, no matter what their ages, adore perfume. Men like it too... on women. And that's why you can always please a gal by giving her a dram or two of fragrance.

Teen-age girls are ones who appreciate perfume most. And that is why some thought has been put into bottling perfume especially for them.

Wouldn't she just love a bottle inserted into the dial section of a miniature gold telephone? That telephone is the darlings thing... it's the cradle type, and the receiver is attached to the 'phone by a gold cord. And guess what the name of the perfume is?

Can't imagine? Then I'll tell you—it's "Number, Please!" Hey, that should do the trick, gals. Price, 79 cents.

Before we leave the subject of perfumes, I've got another little item here I'd like to chat about. Try to picture ornate candelabra (in gold or silver, take your pick) in which are inserted three, long and slender perfume bottles. You guessed it—the bottles are supposed to be candles. Now for the flame. The screw-top on each bottle is in the shape of a red flame. Cute, huh?

Now the perfume itself is in three different colors. There is a pink-filled candle, green one and a yellow one.

I shouldn't tell you this, but when the salesgirl wasn't looking, I unscrewed the caps on the bottles and sniffed, so I could tell you what the fragrances are. The green is pine-scented, the pink is sort of a floral bouquet and the yellow is a sophisticated scent... perfect for evening. The candelabra cost 79 cents, complete.

Latest girls' hair barettes have spaces left for wearers to insert pictures of their boy-friends or favorite movie stars. What next?

These come in turquoise, pink and white, trimmed with gold, and have "teeth" which grip the hair securely. Price is 25 cents each.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

It's Not Too Early to Start Taking Vitamin D Capsules

I am thinking today of the fact that far too many grown-ups fail to attend to their vitamin-D consumption during the colder months. In the summer when we are in the sunshine a lot, we do not have to worry about this, but when winter comes and we seldom bask in the sun's rays we should think of it. We then need a good supply of vitamin D from some source other than the sun's rays.

We get some vitamin D from eggs, whole wheat, milk, lettuce and other sources, but in very small quantities. The importance of calcium in the diet, especially as we grow older, has been greatly emphasized during the past few years. We cannot properly utilize the calcium we consume unless we get enough vitamin D.

It occurs to me that it is none too soon to begin vitamin D therapy if we wish to avoid our quota of fall, winter and spring colds. You can obtain this by taking cod liver oil or one of the vitamin capsules or tablets which give you this vitamin along with others.

Most mothers are very faithful in giving their children vitamin D but few adults take as good care of themselves, yet they need this essential nutrient just as their children do. Of course vitamin D is especially important for the child because his bones are still developing, but it is equally important for the adult, although for different reasons.

Since nippy winds and sudden changes in temperature are a part of fall, why not resolve right now to try to avoid colds. These take such a toll of energy and comfort and accomplishment that we should skip just as many of them as we possibly can.

Take your vitamin D. Avoid extreme fatigue and loss of sleep, over-eating, overheated rooms and drafts, and you will be surprised at how well you will get along.

You may be able to throw off the cold germs you will run in to in offices, crowded buses or trains or subways, or crowds any place. You may even be able to withstand the onslaught of germs in your own home. Often a cold begins with one member of the family and fills one by one every member in it.

Put a wire rack inside the drawer of one of your kitchen cabinets for storing pot and pans and pie tins upright. Using this filing system, you'll be able to find what you want quickly and remove it easily.

If you're about to buy a crinoline petticoat to wear under full-skirted dresses, you'd be wise to invest a little extra money in one that is guaranteed to hold its stiffness through countless washings.

Nursing First Choice Of High School Grads

MONTREAL (CP) — About 3,500 Canadian girls are expected to enter nursing schools across the country in the next few weeks.

The Canadian Nurses' Association says 25 per cent of all girl graduates from high school annually enter the three-year course in 171 schools of nursing in Canada.

"Nursing continues to be the first occupational choice of Canadian girls graduating from high school," says Frances McQuarrie, nursing education secretary of the CNR.

Girls prefer nursing as a career, she says, because they are "interested in working with people rather than with a typewriter or serving across a counter."

HELD IN HIGH REGARD
"Both the daughters and their parents tend to favor nursing because of the public's high regard for the profession. But what we really look for in a girl is the desire to serve, and a genuine interest in health improvement."

Opportunities for nursing are wide and stimulating, Miss McQuarrie said that in addition to service on hospital staffs, nurses are needed in public health, private duty, in industry and in remote settlements.

Openings also exist in the World Health Organization, the Colombo plan, the International Red Cross and other organizations.

As for romance, Miss McQuarrie noted that a large number of nurses marry after a short time in the profession. "As far as I know, there is no better preparation for marriage than a nurse's education," she says.

Doherty-Butler Wedding In Assumption Church

At a wedding ceremony in Assumption Church, Mt. Newton, Doreen Butler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Butler, Keating Cross Road, became the bride of Peter Doherty, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Doherty, Sr., 1219 Carlisle Street, Esquimaux. Father Williamson officiated and during signing of the register, Father Le Cleric sang "Ave Maria." Baskets of glad-oli and asters decorated the church.

The titian-haired bride was charming in her gown of white nylon net over satin, with lace bodice, over which she wore a redingote of nylon with lace panels which buttoned to the waist and swept into a long train. A bonnet headdress trimmed with orange blossoms held her fingertip veil and she carried a bouquet of Talisman roses and stephanotis.

Matron of honor, Mrs. Elsie Mayzes, sister of the bride, and bridesmaid, Mrs. Kathleen Mitchell, sister of the groom, were gowned identically in strapless gowns of blue nylon net over taffeta. Dainty lace jackets matched the lace panels in the skirt. Their bouquets were of yellow carnations.

Miss Sandra Lindenback, junior bridesmaid, wore a gown of blue nylon net over taffeta.

Bride Wears Grandmother's Gown At Wedding Ceremony in Sidney

Wearing her grandmother's two-piece wedding gown of cream brocade-cashmere, lovely Donna Idelle was a charming picture when she became the bride of Robert Charles Flood, Saturday evening, in St. Andrew's Anglican Church, Sidney.

The graceful skirt of the heirloom gown flared to full-length, extending into a brief train and the jacket featured a high neckline, with bodice insert of shirred white silk. Fitted long-sleeved sleeves were trimmed at the shoulder with tiny epaulettes, and she carried a colonial bouquet of American Beauty roses, centred with an orchid.

Rev. R. Melville performed the double-ring ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Gilbert, Third Street, Sidney, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. T. Flood, 710 Fort Street, Victoria. White gladioli banked the altar.

As the couple signed the register, Miss Deanna Johnson sang The Lord's Prayer, accompanied by organist, Mrs. Darville.

Miss Yvonne Christian was maid of honor, wearing a gown of rose iridescent taffeta with deep, sweetheart neckline, fitted bodice, and flared skirt.

Bridesmatron, Mrs. M. Daniels and bridesmaids, Miss Joan Abel, Vancouver, and Miss June Sundstrom, New Westminster, wore gowns of mushroom, green and gold, iridescent taffeta respectively. Gowns were styled similarly to the gown of the maid of honor. All wore Juliet caps and carried muffs trimmed with floral sprays.

Little Deldre Stout, Vancouver, cousin of the bride, was flower girl, in a dress of rose iridescent taffeta. Douglas Ward was ring bearer.

Brother of the groom, R. Flood, was best man and guests were ushered into the church by Roland Gilbert and Robert Gilbert, brothers of the bride, and Alan Lum.

At the reception in the Canadian Legion Hall, Sidney, N. E. West proposed the toast to the bridge. Newlyweds cut a four-tier wedding cake topped with sprays of heather.

Leaving for an Up-Island honeymoon, the bride wore a navy-flecked coat dress with red accessories, topped with full-length coat of off-white. Mr. and Mrs. Flood will live at 816 Reed Avenue, Victoria.

ALUMINUM CABLE from Canada was used in a Peruvian high-voltage power line, installed at altitudes of from 13,000 to 15,000 feet—the world's highest. Canada supplied not only the cable but also the technical assistance required on this record job. We imagine that aluminum's light weight was particularly appreciated by the llamas or whatever other beasts of burden were used to get the cable to the top.

In the rugged mountain country of British Columbia where Alcan's own huge Kitimat development is going on, the aluminum transmission lines used represent another record: they are the largest-diameter overhead power lines in the world. Aluminum Company of Canada, Ltd. (Alcan).

French Hero Denies Giving Reds Interview

PARIS (Reuters)—Brig-Gen. Christian de Castries, hero of Dien Bien Phu, yesterday angrily denied giving an interview to the East German Communist newspaper Neues Deutschland, published three days ago.

The lean jungle fighter flared up when a reporter showed him a newspaper which reproduced the alleged interview.

In it de Castries was alleged to have said that the siege of the Indo-China fortress "was a battle in which the infantry, artillery and, above all, the morale of the enemy was much superior."

He quoted him as saying he had never believed in aggressive intentions among "the people's democratic countries," and that all American attempts at "aggression" must be fought.

De Castries, who returned here Friday after four months' captivity in a Vietnamese prison camp, told reporters in his luxurious apartment:

"The man has lied from beginning to end."

William Allen, Veterans' Junk, 555 Johnson, has asked police for extra supervision of his property because his stock is being depleted by thieves. He said his brother saw two men carrying cast iron through the gate of the yard, but they escaped before he could catch them.

personality, he said, and true personality development was growth of the spirit.

"Travel light... be your own self and don't rely on gadgets," he urged.

People today too often became so encumbered with the "luggage" of living they became mere luggage themselves, said His Grace.

The archbishop was critical of the press, especially the press in England, for "exploiting" the sufferings of the few. "There is only one thing to do, to help that person forget the past," he said, "and you can multiply this every day."

His Grace called on the audience to be "redeemers of society" by stabilizing and restoring God's law. "There is no sense in talking about anything else," he said, "there is nothing else which can save life, keep it wholesome and worth living. Our hope is not in results, but in Him."

The archbishop left today for Vancouver.

The archbishop, accompanied by his wife, son, and Temple Fisher, and the Archbishop of British Columbia, Most Rev. H. E. Sexton, left Victoria at 7.45 a.m. and motored to Nanaimo. From there the party traveled in the Princess of Nanaimo to Vancouver.

Observers who saw the party on its way said the prime minister showed no signs of strain following his arduous Sunday schedule here. He was described as "bubbling."

In Vancouver today he will attend a reception at the Hotel Vancouver after a private luncheon given by UBC Chancellor Brig. Sherwood-Lett.

Dr. Fisher will be made an honorary doctor of laws when he visits UBC Wednesday. The order will be conferred at a special convocation.

He leaves for the east Wednesday night.

Whalley Boy, 7, Rescues Sister From Burning Home

WHALLEY, B.C. (CP)—A seven-year-old boy played the hero's role here during the week-end, when he rushed into his flaming home to rescue his sleeping baby sister.

Ronnie Litchfield was left alone in the house while his mother went up the road near their home to look for another sister.

The boy noticed flames coming from an oil drum beside the house, and attempted to extinguish them himself. The blaze spread to the house despite his efforts, and the lad was forced to run through a wall of flames to rescue his sister.

The completely destroyed home was only partially insured, and damage was estimated at $1,900.

Vancouver Police Nab $2,400 Hold-Up Suspect

VANCOUVER (BUP)—The Vancouver police have arrested a suspect in the $2,400 holdup of a Vancouver drugstore Sunday.

The suspect was booked for investigation after he was arrested last night at a U-drive. Police are searching for two other men in the armed holdup.

Two unmasked gunmen gagged a clerk and a delivery boy while another waited outside before taking the money from a safe.

NIAGARA LOAN

Need money? Then the four different ways you can borrow at Niagara Finance will interest you.

First, domestic loans. These are sometimes called 'husband-and-wife' loans—they alone sign-it is arranged in about 24 to 36 hours and enjoys widespread popularity amongst Canadian couples.

Second, car or truck loans. Here's one of the fastest ways to borrow money. It's very easy to handle, both from your point of view and ours. Motor owners can apply by mail or in person. Only the owner of the car and truck need sign. Details are often completed in as short a time as 10 minutes.

Besides loan plans which fit the needs of almost everyone there are two good reasons for you to pick Niagara Finance for money requirements. Loans to $1500 are life insured at no extra cost to you. And rates on many Niagara loans are lower... in other words, you get more for your money! For full information, just drop in anytime or phone.

ACROSS CANADA WITH MONSARRAT EIGHT-WEEK JOURNEY BEGINS AT ST. JOHN'S

The long journey starts tomorrow—Canada coast-to-coast—and in spite of dire prophecies of heat, dust, fatigue, boredom, and roads like old-fashioned washboards, I'm really looking forward to it.

Some of those prophecies may come true; it won't matter at all. When I was in South Africa after the war, I always planned to drive from Cape Town to Cairo—about four thousand miles of civilization, jungle, desert, and roads varying from top-grade highways to farm-tracks. I never made that journey, for a variety of reasons. When I came to Canada eighteen months ago, I was determined to drive from the east coast to the west—also about four thousand miles, of country varying from seashore and mountain passes to mile after mile of dusty farm-land. Now it's going to come true.

BY AIR AND ROAD

The journey I've planned will be made mostly by car, but I want to start from St. John's, Newfoundland, which I knew well during the war, and since there isn't time to take the car across from the mainland, that part will be by air. The rest will be by road, from Sydney, Cape Breton, to Victoria, British Columbia, with the middle section (Port McNicoll to Fort William) by lake steamship. Being a writer on leave-of-absence from an office job, I'll be writing about it as I go along.

I'm not equipped to survey Canada like an eagle; and I don't want to flit across it like a bee. The journey will take eight weeks, and the story I hope to tell will be what one man sees when he crosses Canada from coast to coast—ten provinces, fifteen major cities, and plenty of time to play with. Most of it I've done already, on speaking tours during the past eighteen months. Now there'll be no speeches (wonderful!), just a few broadcasts, and lots of driving—which I love.

The car is a Bentley—technically, a Bentley Mark VI Continental. In case you catch sight of it on the way, it is dark grey, shaped like a Dutch cigar, and extremely photogenic. I've had it for a year, and after 13,000 miles it's just about run in. If pressed, it will go 120 mph. It will also move at a gentle walking pace, just as smoothly. You will have guessed that I love it dearly.

What else have I got? A large collection of maps, provided by the Royal Automobile Club of Canada; an itinerary

which I hope to stick to; a few old clothes, a camera, a fishing-rod, a pair of binoculars, and a lot of advice. I'll use them all. I've also got an inquisitive mind—Canada is still very new to me, and I'm looking forward tremendously to seeing it all in one piece—and a mood that can be summed up as "British Columbia or Bust!"

Tomorrow the journey starts from St. John's, Newfoundland. I can't help be pleased about that. During the war my ship began a lot of journeys from St. John's; we were attached to a Canadian escort group, and for nearly two years we used to hole up periodically in St. John's at the finish of our west-bound convoys, sleep for five or six days, and then set out on the homeward trip.

After St. John's, I fly to Sydney, Cape Breton, where the car, the camera, and the old clothes will be waiting for me. As far as Ottawa (three weeks) I shall be alone; then my wife joins me, for the five weeks that will take us across the prairies, over the mountains, and down to the Pacific Ocean.

An obliging man with a computer (though the wrong kind of computer) has added up the total mileage for me. He made it out to be $47.73—which a ready mind will translate into the formidable span of 4,773 miles.

What I'll write is still a matter of guess-work. It's almost impossible to drive 4,773 miles, and describe what you see, and the people you meet, without treading on somebody's toes in the process. (That has already happened. When I discussed the journey with a man at the club, he exclaimed: "What? You're not going to Swift Current? But I was born there!" I said I was sorry. It made matters worse.)

I hope you'll forgive me, in advance, for me, it's going to be a wonderful experience anyway.

150,000 Jam Toronto To Welcome Marilyn

(Compiled From BUP and CP Dispatches)

TORONTO—Sixteen-year-old Marilyn Bell, who said she was used to getting wet, thanked a crowd of thousands today for standing in the rain to cheer her for her swim across Lake Ontario.

The freckle-nosed high school girl rode in triumph from the Royal York Hotel to the City Hall through a crowd Mayor Leslie Saunders said was the biggest on Bay Street since the war heroes returned.

Police said more than 150,000 persons crowded along Bay Street and around city hall to see Marilyn. They said it was a bigger crowd than assembled to see Queen (then) Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh during the royal tour.

Miss Bell, who won the heart of the nation last week with her unprecedented feat, said the welcome was "Wonderful. Wonderful. Wonderful."

"I want to thank all you wonderful people for coming out on such a wet day and getting soaked," she said. "I'm used to it, but I didn't expect so many people."

As the procession came up Bay Street, the police lost control of the crowd. Fans jammed themselves up against the cars and gave the motor cavalcade the appearance of running through a mass of humanity. As Marilyn's car passed, fans fell in step behind, covering the street almost solidly with a roof of umbrellas.

Ticker tape billowed from the windows and rooftops and other paper of all colors and sizes floated down through the drizzle.

Marilyn smiled and posed for photographers before and after the presentation in a powder blue raincoat and illusion heel red shoes. Her classmates presented her with a lei of pink, white and mauve chrysanthemums which she wore around her neck and she carried a bouquet of gladioli.

Marilyn's swimming coach, Gus Ryder, was cheered as he said he "appreciated the faith the people of Toronto had in Canadian youth as being, in my estimation, the best in the world."

P.M.'S CONGRATULATIONS

At the climax, Mayor Leslie Saunders gave Marilyn a gold Maple Leaf set with a large diamond and engraved with the city's congratulations as well as a set of matched luggage.

The student body of Marilyn's school, Loretto College, was at the city hall steps for the ceremony.

Among the hundreds of telegrams of congratulations still pouring in on Marilyn was one from Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent. He wired:

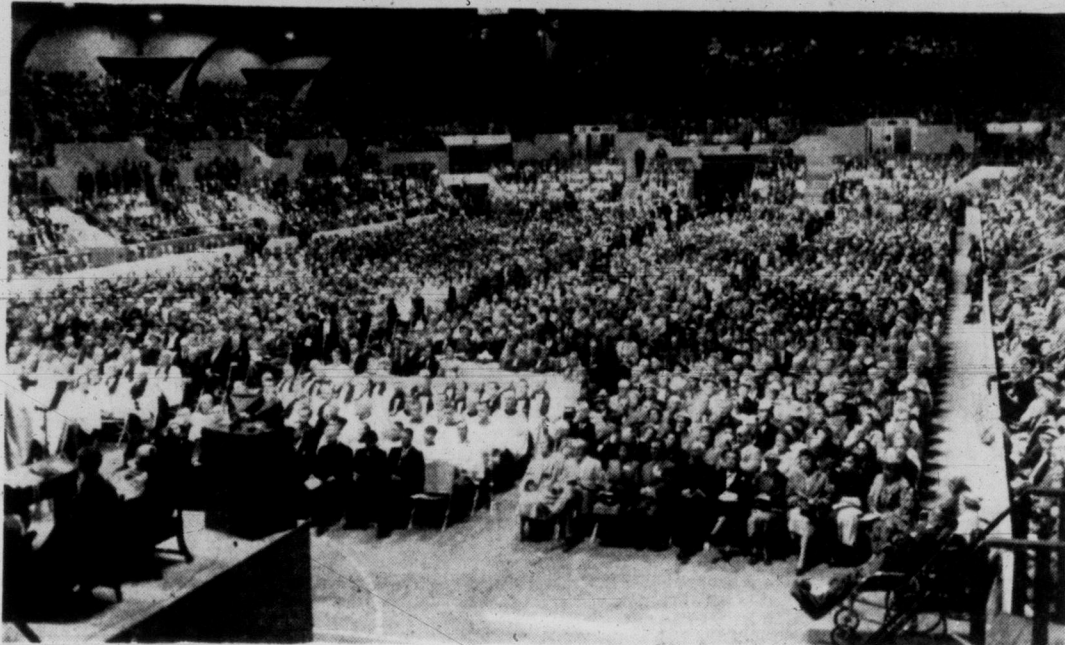

"Please accept my most hearty congratulations for your splendid achievements. Your fellow Canadians are very proud of you for your great swim."

Gifts worth at least $60,000 kept pouring in, and it was estimated the little blonde with the big smile could make $100,000 by personal appearances and endorsing products. Marilyn flew to Montreal Saturday night and made a brief personal appearance at a Shriner's convention in the Montreal Forum.

Record Throng Packs Arena To Hear Primate's Address

Arena Capacity Taxed for First Time

Arena was packed long before Archbishop of Canterbury service started at 7:30 p.m. It was biggest crowd ever to assemble there. People started pouring in shortly after 6 p.m. and approximately 8,000 were seated when impressive service started. Several fainting due to heat and strain. Visiting clergy are

By TONY DICKASON

Nearly 8,000 people jammed the Memorial Arena last night—largest group ever to assemble there—to hear the Archbishop of Canterbury, Most Rev. Geoffrey Fisher give a fact-packed and spiritually illuminating address which drew appreciative and studied attention from assembled thousands.

Against background of colorfully surplised massed choirs, His Grace shed his Coronation mitre and robe before facing the audience which consisted of members of all local Anglican parishes and visitors from the mainland and northwest states.

Only a few could not gain admission. Additional chairs were brought into the arena which upped normal capacity from 5,400 to nearly 8,000. Front row of listeners were sitting almost at His Grace's feet.

In his stirring address, given with his spectacles at times shoved high on his forehead,

His Grace said the Ten Commandments of the Bible are "not enough for the complicated community which is modern society. The Commandments were adequate for a 'primitive' society but alone were not enough to solve today's moral problems."

He advocated that the present-day seeker after truth and spiritual insight study the Sermon on the Mount.

Modern Society Sets Up 'Soft' God

Modern society, he said, had created a "sentimental God," based on individual emotions. Such a conception by those who believed this way presupposed a God "as soft as themselves."

He called the welfare state an "admirable institution—and it all perishes from the lack of people who have not the love of Christ in their hearts."

The arena started to fill about 6 p.m., an hour-and-a-half before the service was scheduled to start. Choir—500 strong from Island parishes—and approximately 70 clergy vested in the HBC, then went in procession down Douglas Street, up Balmoral Street and down Blanshard Street to the arena. So numerous were white, black and rose surplised choristers it took nearly a half-hour before they were seated in the north end of the arena.

Choirmaster and organist of Christ Church Cathedral, Graham Steed, conducted the massed voices while assistant organist Miss Ann Van der Voort accompanied on the Hammond organ.

Among distinguished guests present were Attorney General Robert Boiner, Labor Minister Eric Martin, and Victoria's Mayor Claude Harrison.

The glory of the British Commonwealth today, the Primate said, was not that members had sprung from one stock only, but from many stocks.

Religious differences within the Commonwealth he termed "pitiful," but added that in each belief there was "some precious

Socialists Deal Adenauer Body Blow

KIEL, Germany (UP)—Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's Christian Democratic (CDU) party lost ground sharply in its first election test since France's rejection of the European army plan, final returns showed today.

The CDU vote in the Schleswig-Holstein state election Sunday was more than one-third less than the 47.1 per cent it polled here in last year's national elections, although the party lost only one seat in the state legislature.

The opposition Socialists picked up five seats—enough to damage Adenauer's reputation considerably.

7th Fleet Can Handle Formosa Drive-Dulles

DENVER (UP)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, meeting here with President Eisenhower and the National Security Council, said he sensed no threat of an immediate Red Chinese invasion of either Formosa or Quemoy Island.

Furthermore, Dulles said, the American Seventh Fleet could handle any "possible" Red effort to overrun Formosa, the seat of the Chinese Nationalist government, from the mainland.

As to what the United States would do if the Reds attacked Quemoy, a few miles off the China mainland, Dulles said that would be a matter first for the military. Its recommendations would go to the executive branch, which, however, would not be bound by them.

TAIPEI, Formosa (UP)—Chinese Nationalist spokesman Gen. Chang Yi-Ting said today heavy nationalist attacks on the Communist-held Amoy area may have delayed a Red attempt to invade Quemoy Island. Nationalist warplanes bombed Amoy and the nearby coastline today.

Chang said quick Nationalist air, sea and artillery retaliation "may have delayed" Red invasion plans.

He said the reported concentration of 220,000 Communist troops in the Amoy area posed a threat to Quemoy. He added, however, that the present Red buildup is not sufficient to indicate a plan to attack Formosa.

Hurricane Rips Maritimes; $7 Million Loss

Annapolis Apple Crop, Fishing Industry
Hardest Hit; Single Death Reported

HALIFAX (CP)—Hurricane Edna, vandal and killer, left a multi-million-dollar swath of twisted trees, ruined crops, wrecked buildings and death as she howled across the Maritimes with 100-mile-an-hour gusts.

Total damage for Nova Scotia and New Brunswick was estimated at $7,000,000.

Miraculously, only one man died in the big storm Saturday. William Jefferson, a Lake Centre, N.S., farmer, was crushed when his barn fell in on him at the storm's peak.

The only serious injury reported was in New Brunswick. J. Mahoney of the Caledonia district was taken to hospital in Fredericton after his car plunged into a washout.

An untold number of livestock died in wind-smashed barns. Four of Charlie Clerk's rows met a typical end in Kentville. Their backs were broken as the hurricane tore their barn from its foundations. They had to be shot.

Yarmouth on Nova Scotia's southernmost tip took the first brunt of the storm. As fallen power lines cranked in the darkened streets a state of emergency was declared and people ordered indoors. A nearby summer resort hotel suffered $25,000 worth of damage.

FISHERMEN SUFFER

Near Yarmouth at Kelley's Cove, waves washed over a 25-foot breakwater and swept $100,000 worth of herring fishing equipment and lobster pots into the sea. A fish plant was ripped from concrete foundations and carried 15 feet in one $15,000 gust. Eight thousand pounds of live lobsters were crushed in their crates.

At Wedgeport, the world's tuna fishing capital about 40 miles from Yarmouth, tuna guides stayed by the waterfront as the mountainous waves did $40,000 damage to fishing gear.

Apple growers in the Annapolis Valley woke to find their 2,500,000-bushel crop of the day before scattered over their orchards like spilled peas. They figured their loss would run to at least $3,000,000.

The numerous minor fires were blamed on the storm.

In Pictou, the wind pried a large chunk off a new freight shed, carried it over two piers and deposited it on the deck of a Danish schooner; a 75-year-old church steeple was snapped off; a dory was scooped off the deck of a scow, carried over two houses and dropped in a vacant lot.

Worst hit part of New Brunswick was Grand Manan Island in the Bay of Fundy. Frothing, house-high waves crashed into the shore and carried a fishing boat out to sea. No one was aboard. Weirs were destroyed, lobster pots and breakwaters battered. Damage was at least $250,000.

ACROSS CANADA WITH
MONSARRATEIGHT-WEEK JOURNEY
BEGINS AT ST. JOHN'S

The long journey starts tomorrow—Canada coast-to-coast—and in spite of dire prophecies of heat, dust, fatigue, boredom, and roads like old-fashioned washboards, I'm really looking forward to it.

Some of those prophecies may come true; it won't matter at all. When I was in South Africa after the war, I always planned to drive from Cape Town to Cairo—about four thousand miles of civilization, jungle, desert, and roads varying from top-grade highways to farm-tracks. I never made that journey, for a variety of reasons. When I came to Canada eighteen months ago, I was determined to drive from the east coast to the west—also about four thousand miles, of country varying from sea-shore and mountain passes to mile after mile of dusty farm-land. Now it's going to come true.

BY AIR AND ROAD

The journey I've planned will be made mostly by car; but I want to start from St. John's, Newfoundland, which I knew well during the war, and since there isn't time to take the car across from the mainland, that part will be by air. The rest will be by road, from Sydney, Cape Breton, to Victoria, British Columbia, with the middle section (Port McNicholl to Fort William) by lake steamship. Being a writer on leave-of-absence from an office job, I'll be writing about it as I go along.

I'm not equipped to survey Canada like an eagle; and I don't want to flit across it like a bee. The journey will take eight weeks, and the story I hope to tell will be what one man sees when he crosses Canada from coast to coast—ten provinces, fifteen major cities, and plenty of time to play with. Most of it I've done already, on speaking tours during the past eighteen months. Now there'll

Bakery Union Split;
Strike 'Mishandled'

VANCOUVER (CP)—Storm of dissension in the ranks of the striking and locked out Bakery Workers' Union flared today with charges and counter-charges over alleged "mishandling" of the 68-day tie-up of major Vancouver bakeries.

A group of union members has charged that Mel Kemmis, secretary of the union has "consistently refused" to call a general membership meeting to vote on settlement proposals advanced last week by mediator Michael McGeough.

Harry Young, spokesman for the group, said a meeting of about 30 bakery supervisors and foremen will be held today to protest "mishandling" of the tieup by the union executive.

Meanwhile, Kemmis announced today that a general meeting will be called Wednesday for a secret ballot by the membership on the settlement proposals.

Kemmis charged that the operators have been unduly "influencing" the supervisors and foremen who are union members.

Government conciliation officer Bill Fraser announced today that he and conciliator Reg Clements are acting in the dispute but that no action would be taken until after the Wednesday vote by the union.

The union executive has recommended rejection of the mediation proposals.

Kemmis denied that internal dissatisfaction over handling of the dispute had created a demand for the ballot.
